THIS STRIKE SITUATION ALL UP IN AIR

Pat, Joe and Jim Go Out on Limb

LONDON (AP)—One of four aerial strikers gave up his perch on the end of a 250-foot construction crane today but three of his companions held on and said they were ready to spend a second chilly night above a building site.

The men—Pat, Joe, Jim and Mick—mounted the crane Monday in protest of pay cuts and spent a shivering night over the construction site.

Mick became exhausted and developed a temperature and it was decided to bring him down.

Scores of sidewalk superintendents gathered beneath the crane in the heart of the city, London's financial district, to watch the quartet take their early morning exercise along the jib.

They spent most of the night in the cabin of the crane, warmed by tea and whisky which other workers carried up 250 steps to them.

The four men, all steel erectors on an office block, say cuts in their bonuses have halved their weekly pay to £12 ($36).

They refused to give their full names, charging the building industry operates a blacklist and they'd never get work again.

Taylor Woodrow, the contractor, stopped all work on the $25,000,000 building. The company said bonuses had been cut and 56 of the 350 workers on the project had been dismissed because of "absurdly low productivity levels."

A company spokesman said the firm was negotiating with the Transport and General Workers Union, to which the men belong, since Christmas.

'PEPPER' BANDITS GET $600,000

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Three bandits tossed pepper in the eyes of Bank of Indochina employees at Vientiane airport today and made off with more than $600,000.

The bank personnel were unloading the cash from a vehicle to put aboard a Royal Air Lao plane bound for Bangkok when the robbers struck, police said. The theft occurred 30 minutes before the plane was due to take off.

Police said the robbers, believed to be French, had a vehicle waiting at the airport for the escape.

After throwing pepper into the eyes of the bank employees, the three men snatched eight bundles of cash and fled.

Officers said the haul included cheques that were being sent to New York via Bangkok along with the cash.

Police believed it was the first robbery ever committed by foreigners in Laos.

Tories Pressing To Alter Inquiry

Committee Review Proposed

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson's government today won its fight to send the Gerda Munsinger case to a judicial inquiry—on the Liberal government's terms.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservative opposition proposed today that a seven-member parliamentary committee review and revise the terms of reference of the judicial inquiry into the Munsinger affair.

Former speaker Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) submitted a motion calling for the committee on the ground that the cabinet's action in framing the terms of reference constituted an invasion of the Commons' right to determine how its privileges shall be dealt with.

"No outside body can usurp this right," Mr. Lambert said. By setting up a judicial inquiry under Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the supreme court into the Munsinger affair, the cabinet abused and infringed Parliament's right to deal itself with its own privileges.

Health Minister MaeEachen, leadoff spokesman for the government, urged Speaker Lucien Lamoureux to reject Mr. Lambert's motion.

URGES REJECTION

The minister said the only type of motion acceptable at that point was one declaring charges against Justice Minister Cardin. Anything else was a "grotesque device" to avoid the original issue raised by the opposition.

Dr. Hans Ziegler of the state's interior ministry said in answer to reporters' questions that responsible authorities have no records or information linking Mrs. Munsinger to spy activities.

NO SPY CONNECTIONS: BAVARIAN OFFICIAL

MUNICH, West Germany (AP)—Bavarian security authorities said today they have found nothing to connect Gerda Munsinger, who figures in the Canadian sex-and-security case, with espionage.

Dr. Hans Ziegler of the state's interior ministry said in answer to reporters' questions that responsible authorities have no records or information linking Mrs. Munsinger to spy activities.

GERDA:

'Life Ruined By Russians'

TORONTO (UPI)—Gerda Munsinger today denied she had been a spy and said "the Russians ruined my life."

Mrs. Munsinger, the central figure in the Ottawa sex scandal, made these comments in an interview with CBC news reporter Norman Depoe.

Depoe asked Mrs. Munsinger if she had been an agent employed by "the Soviets".

"That is a lie, let me say why... those people have harmed me so much in my young life that I would never even move a finger for anyone of them," Mrs. Munsinger said.

Depoe asked Mrs. Munsinger how the Russians had ruined her life.

GIRL IN PIGTAILS

"I was 16 when the war was over... long blonde pigtail... a farmer's girl. They did with me what they felt like for three years. They ruined my life because of those three years I had quite a lot of operations. My whole life has been ruined with it."

Depoe asked her why she had come to Canada.

"Because I wanted to get away from all this... you see there was so much harm done to me after the war by the Russians and I couldn't forget here."

"I wanted to forget and I knew I couldn't forget. I wanted to get away from the country."

Depoe asked her what she plans to do with her life now.

HONEYMOON HERE?

"I may even take my honeymoon in Canada... who knows?" replied Mrs. Munsinger, who is going to be married soon.

She added that she may even live in Canada after her marriage.

Meanwhile in Munich, press agent Joseph Ferency, who claims to have bought world rights to her story, said Mrs. Munsinger has "never said anything about spying."

Ferency denied reports the 36-year-old blonde would fly to Canada to "clear her name."

He said the story "is merely a rumor. There is no basis in it at all."

Ferency admitted, "Mrs. Munsinger does not know herself as yet what she is going to do."

"In the meantime," he said, "we are keeping her hidden away for a while longer to prevent the opposition (newsmen) from getting at her."

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

We've had some mail and heard many comments about the Greater Victoria Art Gallery showing of rocks and water and (appropriately perhaps) fruit cakes in plastic bags. There seems to be a growing feeling that the gallery is having us on.

Much suspicion could be removed if, along with each showing of "far-out" art," the artist was required to display one painting or drawing of a scene or portrait or still life, just to prove he had won his spurs doing something the rest of us couldn't do.

When an artist displays something which could be duplicated by a child or an ape there will always be suspicion of fraud both on the part of the artist and the gallery which collects money for its exhibits.

Greater Victoria School Board Employees' Association's newsletter, edited by Denis H. Besley, says there would be less beer bottles and pop bottles broken on the streets if there was a 10-cent charge and refund for these bottles instead of two cents.

The same bulletin says the school board moves quickly to arrange vaccinations and inoculations for pupils to avoid the spread of illness in the schools. All board employees should be given the same shots to make the program effective, says the union, noting that this "approach has not been followed by the board."

Sometimes it's the small things that build Victoria's fame abroad. A San Franciscan sent this clipping from an unidentified U.S. magazine which collects news oddities:

CITY DUPLEX

Rheumy duplex, Stadacona Park-area, 5 rooms up and down. Adv in Victoria (B.C.) Daily Times.

The magazine adds: "Catarrh Hall, we call it."

Gwen Scott, Marjette Book Shop, advises that Agnes Newton Keith, author of Land Below the Wind and Three Came Home, walked into MacFadden publishers and discovered the managing director to be George Clay, who wrote the best-seller novel Gina. Mr. Clay lived in Duncan and recently in Victoria, where he is well known.

BRIEFS FROM BRITAIN—The Ministry of Works has rejected an offer by two technicians who would remove a hundred-year-old clock from Big Ben. They said the repair would provide the famed clock with a clear "boing" instead of the "bol-o-ing" now famous to radio listeners around the world. Reason for the refusal—no one ever has complained. The English like "bol-o-ing" best . . . Dorset police are exhibiting an anti-climb paint which stays slippery when applied to drain pipes . . . British TV's spy story, Danger Man, has been nominated in Hollywood as the best-produced TV program of 1965 . . . The Salvation Army has permission to use the Beatles' film Help! as basis for a fund campaign advertisement.

SNIPPETS—Canadian Girls' Rodeo Association is looking for competitors here. The association's head office address is Box 23, Calgary . . . Fox Cinema's former assistant manager, Gary Nixon, is now assistant librarian at Dawson Creek . . . Harry Hollins, who plays piano duets with his wife at Silver Threads, reads his music without glasses, which is pretty good for 95 . . . Herbie II, the caged seal at Undersea Gardens, punched a hole in his wire fence and attacked a lady halibut last week. Divers intervened but the halibut looked a bit flattened by it all . . . Pat Bay Highway residents are apparently competing in displaying reflector tape road marks which tell friends where to prepare to turn off.

Shotgun Shuba Says He Knew Gerda in '56

MONTREAL (CP) — Columnist Bruce Taylor writes in The Star of an interview with George Shuba, a former baseball player who said Gerda Munsinger followed him to Ottowa, Florida and Tennessee.

Mr. Shuba, who played with the old Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League and now works for the United States post office in Ohio, told

Mr. Shuba quotes Mr. Shuba as saying:

"All she ever said about herself was that she was a model. She never talked politics or anything like that. I never even saw her with a camera."

"As far as I'm concerned, the only secrets she could have stolen at the ball park were the signals the catcher gave the pitcher."

FIRST MET IN 1956

Mr. Shuba, now married and a father of three, said he first met Miss Munsinger here early in the 1956 baseball season while he was playing for the Royals and dated her throughout the season. While with the Royals, he was known as Shotgun Shuba.

Some time between May and July, 1957, he said, he got a call from Gerda who was upset because "her mother had died in Germany."

He said he would tell the FBI about his relationship with Miss Munsinger because he did not want to lose his job with the U.S. post office.

Trustees agreed to request Saanich police to make extra checks of the schools, particularly at weekends.

Buildings superintendent Bryan Shaw told the board that mud has been splattered on exterior doors and walls at both schools on recent weekends.

Plants have been torn up and thrown against the buildings he said. Mr. Shaw said it is more like the work of small children and is chiefly a nuisance. The vandalism has occurred on Saturday afternoons or evenings, he said.

Trustees agreed to request Saanich police to make extra checks of the schools, particularly at weekends.

Unsettled weather is expected over much of the province for the next few days as fairly moist air continues to flow in from the Pacific. However, temperatures are forecast to begin a slow downward trend as somewhat colder air moving from Alaska over the Pacific reaches the coast on Wednesday.

'Usefulness As Minister Has Ended'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The leader of the New Democratic Party said Monday night that no matter what happens from now on regarding the case of Gerda Munsinger, the usefulness of Lucien Cardin as a justice minister has ended.

Here for a service club speech, T. C. Douglas told a press conference Mr. Cardin was only trying to prove his strength when he mentioned Mrs. Munsinger in the House of Commons during debate on his department's estimates.

Mr. Cardin since has alleged that one or more Conservative ministers in the last cabinet of John Diefenbaker were involved with her during their tenure in office and that a possible security leak existed because of this.

Mr. Douglas said of Mr. Cardin's accusations in the House:

"So often weak men want to be strong in the wrong place. His ego was so injured that he acted like a spoiled child and had to lash out at somebody and in a temper mentioned the Munsinger case."

WOULD WALK OUT

Mr. Douglas said he is prepared to lead his party out of the House should the Liberals and Conservatives not return to the nation's business immediately. But he did not foresee the government falling over the issue.

He said the discussion should end with Prime Minister Pearson's announcement of a judicial inquiry into the affair, but that with Social Credit and Creditists support the minority Liberal government would continue.

"It would be a very queer thing to hold an election over," he said. "I suppose you'd call it the Goldilocks election—who's been sleeping in my bed?"

He also said he had been reliably informed that a person he would not name had destroyed the original justice department files on Mrs. Munsinger, 36, once believed dead but since found living in Munich, Germany. He said, though, the RCMP has a duplicate of the file.

He said that when a person is in public office his private life is public business, particularly if he is a cabinet minister.

If I were a minister of the Crown and allowed myself to be compromised in some way, say a sex scandal, gambling or fraud, I would lay myself open to blackmail.

It's not only a matter of security but the operation of the department. If someone were wanting special privileges then they can blackmail me."

"If I had been head of the government, I would have let him go just because I would consider him vulnerable to have around."

He mentioned no names.

FULTON REPLY

Munsinger File 'Sent to RCMP'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—RCMP file on the Munsinger case was returned yesterday to the best of his knowledge that's where the file is today, former Conservative justice minister Davie Fulton said here today.

Mr. Fulton made this clear today in reply to charges in Vancouver by New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas that the file—Mr. Douglas described it as a justice file—had been destroyed by an individual he refused to identify.

The NDP said his source was completely dependable. However, it was his understanding that the RCMP had a duplicate copy.

ONE COPY

It is Mr. Fulton's understanding there was only one copy of the file. It was shown to him by the RCMP commissioner. After examining it, he returned it to the RCMP.

During his speech in the Commons Monday, Mr. Fulton said that the file made no suggestion that "any offence had been committed by any member of the government."

Mr. Fulton said that he received a report from the RCMP. The same day he referred it to the then prime minister John Diefenbaker.

France Breaching Obligations

LONDON (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart accused France today of breaching its obligations toward its Western allies by its plan to withdraw troops from the NATO military network.

In the discussion that followed, West German, Italian, Dutch and Luxembourg delegates joined Stewart in an expression of concern over President de Gaulle's plans.

France's representative, Jean de Broglie, said France's desire for change within the Atlantic alliance is as great as her desire that the North Atlantic Treaty should endure.

Stewart referred to a nine-point declaration signed Oct. 22, 1954, in London by the seven WEU countries and Canada and the United States. This laid down that all the forces of the signatory powers stationed in Europe should be under NATO command except those troops specifically earmarked for national purposes.

The British diplomat said France's desire to move its forces from NATO's command is a "contravention" of this agreement which later was endorsed by the 15-country NATO itself. Among the French forces de Gaulle plans to pull out of NATO's command are 65,000 troops in West Germany.

He said that when a person is in public office his private life is public business, particularly if he is a cabinet minister.

If I were a minister of the Crown and allowed myself to be compromised in some way, say a sex scandal, gambling or fraud, I would lay myself open to blackmail.

It's not only a matter of security but the operation of the department. If someone were wanting special privileges then they can blackmail me."

"If I had been head of the government, I would have let him go just because I would consider him vulnerable to have around."

He mentioned no names.

CRASH INJURES HUSBAND, WIFE

A woman is in fairly good condition today in Royal Jubilee Hospital following a car accident Saturday night in Saanich.

Injured was Mrs. Anne Aiken, 33, of 4012 McLellan, a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Charles.

Policemen said their auto struck a power pole at McKenzie and Cedar Hill Cross Road.

Mr. Aiken was also taken to hospital but was released after treatment.

STEADY GRIND AHEAD FOR MLAs

Premier Bennett began pouring on the coal Monday to finish up the legislative session in a hurry.

He ordered a night sitting Monday but despite seven hours through the afternoon and evening, Education Minister Leslie Peterson still had not received approval of his salary vote.

Indications are there will be night sittings every day of the week for the balance of the session.

This probably will ensure prorogation sometime next week and possibly will see a record number of night sittings racked up for a session.

They began the earliest ever this year when twice weekly night sittings were instituted at the outset and it has been held so far.

The steady grind will—if past performance is a guide—soon tell on the opposition MLAs as they grow tired and offer few arguments.

From here on, some of them can look forward to a tedium existence starting in the morning with committee meetings from 9:30 a.m. to noon, afternoon sittings from 2 to 6 p.m., another committee meeting from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., and finishing with a night sitting starting at 8:30 and going to about 11:30 p.m.

Then, next morning, committee meetings at 9:30 a.m. and...

'DAGGER OVER OUR HEADS'

Water Bill Goes Ahead

The provincial government has turned thumbs down on Victoria's bid to delay legislation on Elk-Beaver Lake water rights for one year.

Water Resources Minister Ray Williston said he is anxious to get the legislation through as quickly as possible. It strips Victoria of historic water rights in the district.

He did however promise not to proclaim the legislation law until Victoria and the Greater Victoria Water District had had full opportunity to present their case to the government.

'DAGGER OVER HEADS'

Mayor A. W. Toone said such a move would be like arguing with a "dagger over our heads."

Once the legislation is approved by the legislature Mr. Williston could proclaim the bill any time he wished.

"He assured us that he would not make a proclamation until every aspect had been discussed fully," Mayor Toone said, "even if it takes 18 months to straighten things out. Mr. Williston felt that an early decision was required to enable his department to spend public funds on surveys and studies."

Asked if the minister gave any reason for the suddenness of his actions last week, Mayor Toone answered "no."

Mr. Williston warned Victoria that he would be bringing in the legislation last Tuesday and within 48 hours had the as then unprinted bill introduced to the house.

Monday's discussion in Mr. Williston's office was friendly enough according to Mayor Toone.

"It was a good discussion lasting about 1½ hours," he said. "But I suppose the only thing we fully agreed on was that a great deal of discussion was needed. We did not agree on when the discussion should take place. We feel the discussion should take place before the bill is voted on."

Mr. Williston's decision means that Victoria and the Greater Victoria Water District will be able to bring any points they wish forward after the bill has received the assent of the house.

STALL ONLY

But their arguments will only be able to stall proclamation of the bill, not prevent it from eventually becoming law.

Present with Mayor Toone for the discussion were Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich, vice-chairman of the Greater Victoria Water District; city solicitor T. P. O'Grady, water commissioner Ronald Upward, city water commissioner James Garnett, city manager Dennis Young and Ald. Michael Griffin.

PREMIER TOO BUSY

Mayor Toone had originally asked for a meeting with Premier Bennett and the minister but the premier informed him that he would be too busy to attend.

Mr. Williston said he had "offered every help and given the assurance that there would be no precipitous action."

He stressed the bill would not become law until it was proclaimed by order-in-council and that before that happened there would be plenty of time to iron out any misunderstandings.

"As we move we will cooperate and deal with the problems as they come along," the minister said.

He was sure that side-issues such as the Elk-Beaver Lake problem could be resolved.

Mr. Williston also repeated an earlier statement that "there is no question of the provincial government taxing water board lands."

and that's going some when sales had already tripled in '65!

A big tri-level train shipment of cars from American Motors on the way to sales success.

We like to start revolutions in the car business.
We started another one last year. We introduced our new, full-size Ambassador.

That was a revolution to remember. We packed Ambassador chock-full of quality features and engineering. Up-to-the-roof Deep-Dip Rust-proofing. Unique Ceramic-Armoured exhaust system. Oh yes, and solid, all-welded, Single-Unit Construction. And the unbeatable safety of a double brake system.

And then the fun began. To Ambassador's basic quality we built in remarkable luxury. Crafted walnut paneling, adjustable arm rests, head rests, thick-cut pile carpeting, floor consoles, coil-spring seats, powerful V8 performance. The whole works. An inspired luxury car.

But wait. There's an important difference between Ambassador and other luxury cars. Ambassador is popular-priced.

You see, most manufacturers put their best features on their high-priced luxury models. We do, too—except that our luxury model is popular-priced.

And that's just where our revolution caught the fancy of car buyers from coast to coast.

We sold three times as many Ambassadors as the previous year. Now, this year, Ambassador sales are streaking higher still. Ambassador sales are currently 41% higher than last year!

Are we sitting back and relaxing? Not on your life. We're producing more Ambassadors every day to meet the demand. At this moment, your nearby American Motors/Rambler dealer has a luxurious Ambassador just for you.

Facing the Giant

SEVERAL OFFICIAL STATEMENTS on Red China within the last few days indicate an increasing recognition in the West that the vast Asian country is destined to have a more dominant effect on world affairs in the relatively near future—and the significant realization that the best way to cope with this eventuality will be through co-operative means rather than by force.

What comes immediately to mind, of course, is the fact that Red China itself champions military means as the approved way of getting ahead in the world, and has its own interpretation of Lenin to support this stand. A resolution of these two approaches will apparently create one of the chief crises of the world within the next few years.

It is interesting, however, to note the trend of current Western policy, particularly as outlined by United States spokesmen.

Vice-President Humphrey, while urging containment of Red China's "aggressive militancy," makes the point that Peking should not be isolated from the rest of mankind. He urges a "spirit of friendship" toward the Chinese people and an effort to convince the Red Chinese regime that military force is not the answer to that country's problems of growth.

Speaking in Montreal on Monday, the United States under-secretary of state, Mr. Alexis Johnson, explained his country's recent policy as an attempt to prevent Communist nations from breaking by force any of the lines that were drawn in the post-war settlements. The stability of the 1945 agreements must be preserved, he says. But he now sees the possibility that the American objectives in Viet Nam can be achieved "without a larger war." A peaceful solution, he says, is desired.

In London, at the same time, Disarmament Minister Lord Chalfont warned that within 15 years Red China could become a powerful nuclear country and "change the whole balance of power in the world." In addition, up to 15 na-

Let's Clean the Slate

THE PARLIAMENTARY SCENE has developed a sordidness probably unprecedented in Ottawa. The assiduous Conservative efforts to expose Liberal scandals which marked the last parliament—and with considerable success—have given place to Liberal efforts to publicize Conservative shortcomings. The result can be acceptable to no one, least of all the public of Canada.

The parliamentarians can lick their wounds; the innocent can establish their innocence and the guilty can weather the storms of accusation as best they may. But the people of Canada are the losers whatever the outcome of the mud-slinging, or by whom it is perpetrated, for it is their parliament that is being shown up as unworthy, it is their national institution that has been demeaned and sullied.

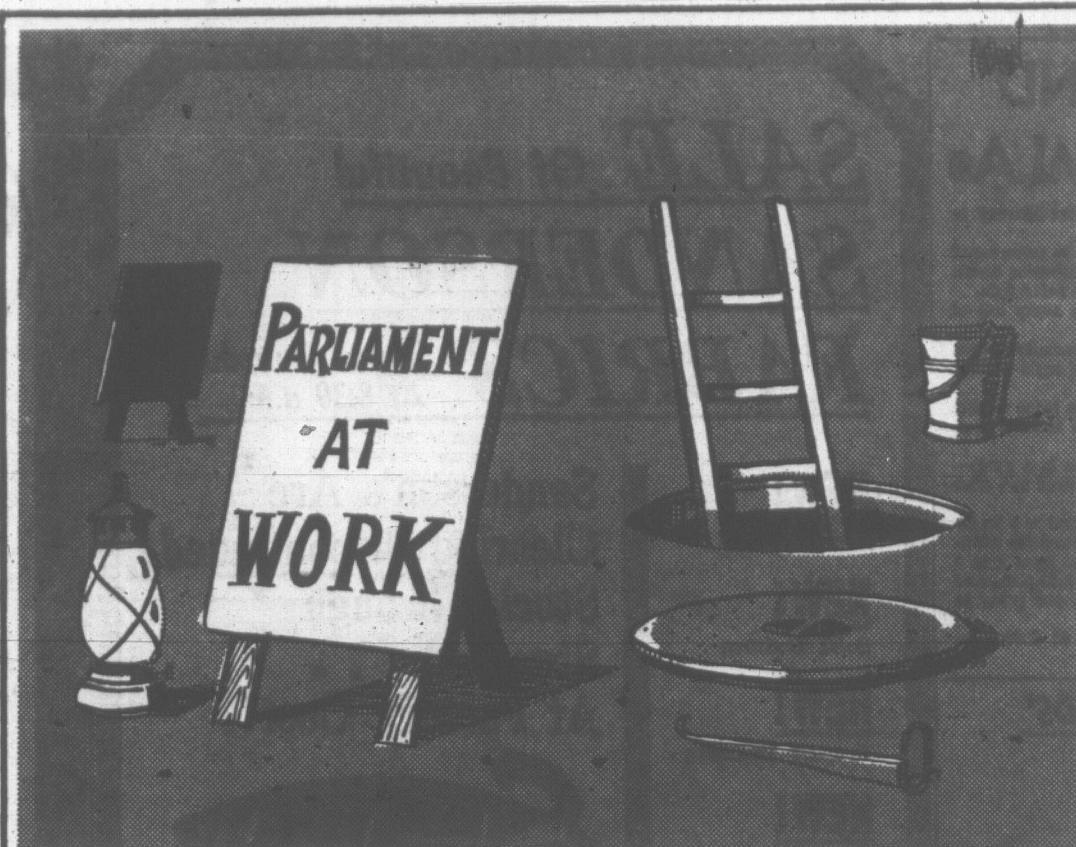

Now that the plug has been pulled it may be as well to drain the barrel. The investigations that have been called should be thorough-going and conclusive. If personal careers must be forfeited—that is the concern of the individual. The public is experiencing a vast unrest and revulsion as a result of all the

Foolish Risks in the Strait

PERHAPS MORE BY GOOD luck than good management, three teenage Sooke boys crossed the Strait last weekend in an 18-foot open power boat, were picked up by the authorities and restored to their parents—at some inconvenience to the American officials and no doubt anxiety to their own families.

Reports of the boys' adventure indicate a certain foolhardiness in the escapade and an apparent lack of regard for the trouble they might have caused others.

The incident deserves mention for these particular characteristics.

The Kremlin Prepares for a New Tack

WE quite take for granted the recurring paralysis of American politics induced every fourth year by the Presidential elections.

Most people are unaware that the same sort of thing happens every so often in the Soviet Union. It has been happening now for some months past. The occasion is the 23rd Congress of the Soviet Communist Party, which will open at the end of the month.

Nobody in Moscow is going to be elected to anything—except as a formality. Brezhnev will be confirmed as First Secretary of the Party; Kosygin will go on being Prime Minister. The old familiar faces of Khrushchev's closest colleagues plus two or three, will continue to occupy the top table.

They will all stand up and make speeches; they will listen to the speeches of a hundred other delegates fresh from their provincial party conferences—all high-powered individuals, some ruling over the lives of millions; they will pass a number of formal resolutions without argument. They will then disperse in their black limousines and life will go on as before.

Why should this performance have such a constipating effect on Soviet policy for so many months in advance?

In America things stand still because everything from high policy to jobs must wait on the popular decision. In

Ten Years Later

New York Times

IT is over ten years since Nikita Khrushchev delivered his famous secret speech of Feb. 25, 1956, exposing to the Communist hierarchy the vicious criminality of Stalin; and the repercussions of that fateful address have not yet ended. Khrushchev knew he was playing with explosive material when he delivered his speech, but he could have hardly foreseen that he was setting in motion a train of events that would lead to the semi-liberation of Eastern Europe and to the bitter, world-shaking rift of Moscow and Peking. By demolishing the myth of Stalin's infallibility, Khrushchev swept away the moral and political basis for Soviet hegemony over world Communism with the result that this hegemony has disapeared.

Within the Soviet Union itself, however, the evolution set off by Khrushchev's depiction of Stalin for what he truly was, a murderous paranoid and a monumental blunderer, has been more halting. That is not to deny that there has been important progress. Soviet domestic economic policy is much more concerned with the Russian people's standard of living than it was in Stalin's day; members of the Soviet elite have far more contact with the outside world than in the days when the "Iron Curtain" was a reality; most of the slave labor camps have been closed.

Unfortunately, none of this progress has profoundly affected the essence of the system that made a Stalin possible. This system is grounded in the Communist party's claim to infallibility and to power of ultimate decision in all major questions of Soviet life. And within the Communist party control is still monopolized by a handful of men, one of whom could conceivably again gather all power in his own hands as Stalin once did and as Khrushchev came close to doing.

The real danger is that Canada's respect for parliament will suffer serious depreciation. Parliament is our highest authority, the keystone of our democracy. Those who have shamed it, even without particularly evil intent, should be encouraged to leave, if not now then at the polls. Parliament is greater than any individual; its authority must be maintained, and that authority must in the end rest upon the respect of the people.

DENNIS THE MENACE

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

Russia the argument about policies and jobs has been going on for months past, and it is only when these arguments are settled, more or less, that the date of the Congress can be announced. The arguments, the manoeuvring for position, take place inside a very small circle indeed—for all practical purposes inside the Party Presidium which itself convenes the Congress and presides over it.

The last Party Congress in which any debate took place among the delegates on the floor was the 14th, in 1927, when Stalin, having earlier defeated Trotsky, had his supporters shout all opposition down. Since then the Congress has been nothing but a jamboree for the participants enjoying their week in Moscow and a formal declaration of governmental intent.

New Leaders' Commitments

There should be a Congress every three or four years, but Stalin managed to go without one from 1939 to 1952. Khrushchev presided over three, beginning with the famous 20th Congress in 1956, the de-Stalinization Congress. His last was in October 1962. This 23rd Congress, then, will be the first full-dress appearance of the succession leadership, its first comprehensive account and its first formal commitment to policy lines designed to carry the leadership through the next three or four years.

Before appearing, thus, they have had to settle the precise composition of the leadership and its policies. And this is why, apart from Kosygin's Taskshen excursion in peace-making diplomacy, there have been no major Soviet initiatives for many months past.

In foreign policy, painfully complicated by the situation in Viet Nam, the Russians have been content to stonewall. But they have been working very hard behind the scenes on a number of fronts, and they have been sorting out quite a serious power struggle, of which we have been vouchsafed no more than a glimpse.

The main tasks at home have been to break out of the muddle into which Khrushchev, after his early successes, had run the economy. Industrial production had dangerously slowed down; the latent dynamism of the best industrial concerns was strangled by red tape and over-centralized planning (the inferior ones thrived on this cushioning); agricultural growth was virtually at a standstill after Khrushchev's spurt in the 1950s, and the subsequent failure of the dream of the Virgin Lands.

These tasks have engaged Mr. Kosygin personally above all other things. The Congress should tell us a good deal about just how far—it is likely to be a long way—Kosygin had decided to go with Liberalism—the injection of the profit motive into industry and the encouragement of localized initiatives—and how serious his thinking has been about the need for a radical attack on the collective farm system already he has proclaimed his faith in the development of the private plot system, as effectively the backbone of agriculture for some time to come—a reversal of Khrushchev's fighting line.

In the world at large Soviet thinking has been inhibited by the Chinese menace, and we may expect the Congress to bring a clarification of Moscow's line towards Peking, perhaps an acknowledgement of the inevitability of a final break.

There can be no coherent thinking in Russia about East-West relations until this problem is settled. It is a problem which involves more than the Soviet Union: hence the feverish consultations between Moscow and the leaders of Communist countries everywhere. It is bound up not only with Russia's relations with the West but with the whole future of a united Communist movement.

Brezhnev Ascendant

As for personalities, here the main conflict has been between Brezhnev and his runner-up Shelepin for the mastery of the Party. There could be no Congress until this struggle was resolved, and it has been resolved, if only temporarily, in Brezhnev's favor—temporarily, because Shelepin is only 48 while Brezhnev is 60 and both have vigorous supporters.

Indeed it has only been quite recently that Brezhnev has been able to secure that of his own men a number of key positions. It will be his Congress. But Shelepin, though he has yielded ground, is powerful and active. The 23rd Party Congress will establish the pattern of leadership for the time being, but not by any means for ever.

FROM WASHINGTON

Going on From Keynes' Success

THE best minds among us who watch and deal with the management of the economy are engaged in earnest discussion of how to preserve and promote the unprecedented prosperity which the country is enjoying. It is now 20 years since the employment act of 1946 declared that "full employment" was a national objective, and it is five years since President Kennedy inaugurated the fiscal and monetary measures which have produced the great expansion of the economy. This great expansion was managed successfully under the direction of Mr. Walter Heller, and supported by a consensus of the preponderant majority of the leading economists in the country.

The story of this expansion, for which there were few tested precedents, is very heartening to those who dare to believe that reason and rational method and rational discussion can be made prevail in human affairs.

Forty years ago, except perhaps a few solitary thinkers in Europe, believed that the capitalist system of private property and free enterprise operating in markets could proceed without severe ups and downs. The business cycle of slump and boom was regarded as being like the cycle of the seasons, as beyond human control and something to be accepted as inherent in the human condition.

This fatalistic view was first challenged effectively in the Western world by John Maynard Keynes, though he himself drew on the teachings of others, notably Knut Wicksell of Sweden. Keynes began to write in the twenties—between the depression after the First World War and the great depression of 1929. Keynes was long regarded as heretical, subversive, even sacrilegious, in that he refused to bow with the accepted nature of things.

Policy Molders

However, Keynes' teachings made their way here and abroad in the universities, and from them into the finance ministries of every advanced industrial nation. In the past five years a new generation of American economists, all of them descended in one manner or another from Keynes, have been at the centre of policy making and decision.

The economic policy which they have directed during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations has been in its overall results a dramatic success. The objective of "full employment" laid down by Congress in 1946 is within sight of being achieved. Full employment cannot in fact be total employment. In a society like ours there are a considerable number of potential workers who, given their location, their lack of opportunity or training or personal ability, are presently unemployed.

By comparison with our own past or the expanding American economy in the past five years has been a miracle. In these five years the Gross National Product has increased by 190 billion dollars. The average annual rate of growth of real output over this period has been 5.5 per cent. The rate of real growth has been nearly twice as big as it was in the 1950s, before the "new economics" became the guide of policy.

Although this dramatic expansion has brought big increases of real wages to labor and of profits to business, there has as yet been no real inflation. From 1960 through 1965 consumer prices rose less than 2 per cent a year. The wholesale price index remained stable until last year. Overall labor costs rose on the average by less than one per cent a year.

Effective Economy

In these five years the expansion did something, though not nearly enough, to improve the lot of the poorest people in the country. The number of persons and families below the poverty line ($3,000 a year) has fallen from over 22 per cent to less than 17 per cent. The gap between Negro and white income has narrowed. Adult Negro unemployment is down from 9 per cent to 5.6 per cent in the last quarter of last year.

Professor Otto Eckstein, formerly of the Council of Economic Advisers, was amply justified in saying that "when firing on all eight cylinders, our economy is a mighty engine of social progress, the greatest man has so far devised."

The central question before the economists and before the country is how that full employment is in sight and now that there is the added inflationary pressure from the Vietnamese war.

We have reason to be confident that the management of the economy will be successful in this new period. For one thing there has never been a time when the technique of measuring a boom was as highly developed or the common property of so many highly expert men. These economists have now achieved such high authority and public respect that politicians will not easily overrule them nor will they be easily obscured by the propaganda of special interests.

Seals

Many of us have been revolted beyond words by what we have lately learned of the St. Lawrence seal hunt. But it was almost as big a shock to learn from a CBC broadcast on March 4 that this ostensibly Canadian business is actually American and that its tremendous profits are going to New York—one more reason to protest to Ottawa—to your MP or to the Minister of Fisheries, Hon. H. J. Robichaud.—Mrs. Hans Brueheim, West Vancouver, B.C.

Praise for Centre

Recently, while in Victoria on business, I had occasion for the first time to view your beautiful new Civic Centre.

What a pleasure it was to view the outcome of what was obviously a carefully thought-out plan, executed in a most professional manner. The color co-ordination was most tasteful and the respect shown the fine examples of historic architecture warms the hearts of us who see some value in the past and seek relief from the boredom of glass and steel.—Mrs. Kathleen V. Nelson, Beautification Chairman, Women's Division, Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

Not Pirates

Your headline on page 2 of the March 9 issue to the effect that "pirate tankers" may be carrying oil to Rhodesia is so far wrong that it shows lack of maritime port knowledge.

Pirates are predators. Smugglers, arms runners and others seeking to infiltrate their (illicit) goods are definitely not "pirates." Their only hope is that they can deliver their cargo and depart without running into trouble. They do not seek to interfere with anyone and hope to avoid any contacts whatsoever.—F. W. Sealey, Sidney.

"I See No Beauty..."

Re the Art (?) Gallery. As a housewife, I see no beauty in a colored or squashed plastic bleach container, or a mouldy hotdog bun or cake, bagged or not.

In the naked department even the colors were not pleasing to my eye.

We have very worthy artists in and about Victoria. They are not accepted at the gallery because they paint a realistic picture.

I prefer pretty pictures over garbage any day. Perhaps the artist missed his calling.—Mrs. I. M. Rodger, 3204 Carrman.

Stabilizing Force

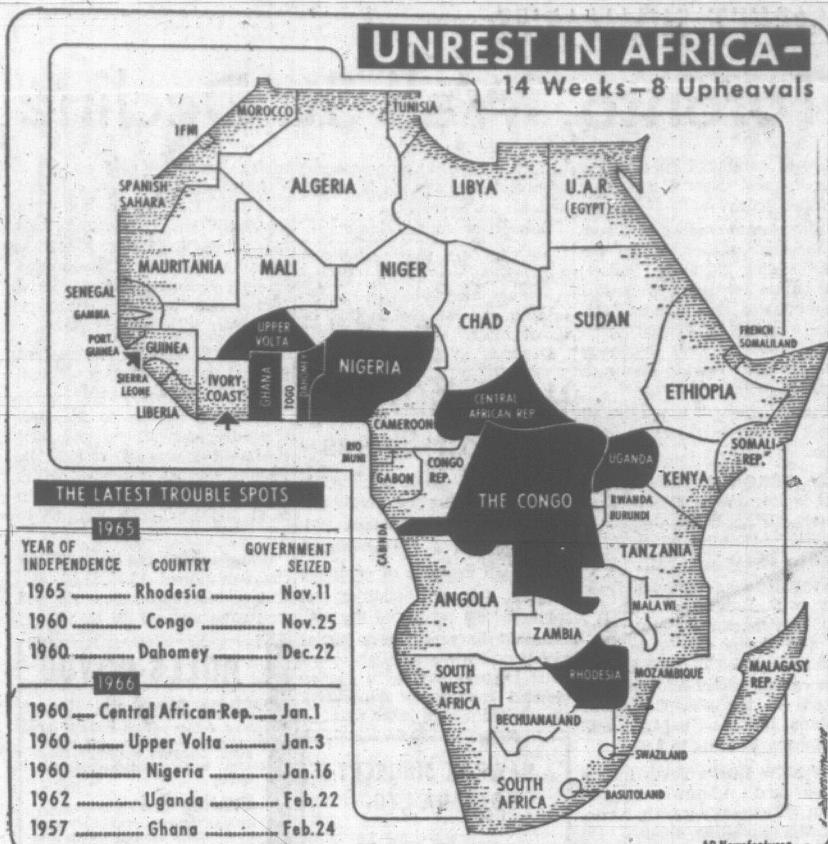

The editorial from Le Devoir of Montreal, entitled "Clipping the Gown," which appeared in the Victoria Times on Thursday, March 10, clearly underlines the critical position which McGill finds itself in as a result of the intransigence of Quebec.

It brings into focus very sharply that McGill University and its graduate body is probably the greatest stabilizing force which remains in the province of Quebec and throughout Canada in these present circumstances. The understanding and goodwill which pervade this group is contributing mightily to the strength and unity of our whole country.

Because of the financial difficulties presently facing McGill the support of all graduates and friends is urgently required. An appeal is being sent out immediately for graduates to give immediate consideration to their contribution to the Alma Mater Fund. In the light of present events and the greatly increased need, any increase or any additional contribution to this fund will be gratefully received.—G. B. McGillivray, chairman, Vancouver Island, McGill Alma Mater Fund, 645 Fort St.

Africa Was Ripe for Revolt; But Not Way Chou Expected

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB

A couple of years ago Chou En-lai said: "An excellent revolutionary situation prevails in Africa."

The Chinese leader was quite right, but not exactly in the way he envisioned. There have been a dozen or so revolutions since, none of them pro-Chinese.

In the past four months alone there have been eight governmental upheavals among the new countries of Africa. Almost all came from the same roots:

1. The unhappy discovery that independence and automatic prosperity were not synonymous.

2. The rise of a new middle class (civil servants, intellectuals, army) disgusted with the waste and corruption of individual dictators.

The recent calendar of revolt or upheaval has run this way:

November 11 Rhodesia
November 25 Congo (Leopoldville)
December 22 Dahomey

1966

January 1 Central African Republic
January 3 Upper Volta
January 16 Nigeria
February 22 Uganda
February 24 Ghana

Rhodesia was a special case. There a white minority of 220,000 declared its independence from Britain to preserve rule over 4,000,000 blacks. Britain retaliated with an economic blockade, principally cutting off petroleum, but the government of Prime Minister Ian Smith is still riding out the storm.

The other three upheavals:
Congo — Gen. Joseph Mobutu removed President Kasavubu and took power for himself "five years." He seemed to be motivated primarily by internal squabbling, which he said "threatened to precipitate the country into the abyss."

Nigeria — The most populous country in Africa (56 million), it is riven by internal strains. The country is 44 per cent Moslem, 34 per cent pagan, 22 per cent Christian. There are over 250 tribes, including several powerful ones, such as the Ibo and the Hausa, with feuds going back for centuries. When rigged elections resulted in national bloodshed, the army moved. Gen. Johnson Aguiyi Ironsi, huge, mustachioed, British-trained, emerged as national强人.

Uganda — Prime Minister Milton Obote moved one step ahead of his enemies. He suspended the constitution, arrested five of his cabinet ministers and put his own man in charge of the army, Col. Idi Amin, 42. Obote dropped dark hints about foreign meddling, but the trouble seemed to be largely tribal—a struggle between Obote's Nilotics of the north and the Bantu of the south.

If there is any pattern in black Africa, it is poverty, patriotism and military stability. The new countries may be poor, but they don't want Peking any more than they want their old colonial masters back. The military, with a vested interest in stability, may be the moderating force in the new nations for many decades to come.

Younger MPs Must Be Hope of the Parliament

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The times in Parliament are rather out of joint for any discussion of the new men in the place. Yet it must be from the newer and younger members that we draw the hope that long-lived animosities will disappear.

It seems clear to me and to most MPs whose opinion I have sought that Jean Marchand the minister of citizenship and immigration (soon to be minister of manpower) has been by far the most impressive of the newcomers. I shall return to Mr. Marchand later with this passing caution that in previous Parliaments, arrivals like Noel Dorion and Guy Favreau made good beginnings.

Mr. Marchand's two particular colleagues Pierre-Elliott Trudeau and Gerard Pelletier are much in the Commons chamber. Trudeau has intervened quite often with questions and answers to barbed comments thrown his way. He doesn't seem to be on the same wavelength as other politicians.

He has a bright, perverse doggedness which underlines a natural, clever brilliance. This is a confident man, determined not to take the institution or himself too seriously. He has none of Jean Marchand's simplicity of language in expressing views.

Chair of the CPR, in the transport committee. Dr. Brand has taken a clear position against universal, compulsory medicare, without any prevarications.

One new Tory, Pat Nowlan, who succeeded his late father as MP for Digby-Annapolis-Kings, has the goodwill of literally everyone. His dad was much cherished and the similarities in build, jaw-line, friendliness and good humor are so strong that he can only miss success by inaction. So far we've had a few brief indicators that the son is a chip off the old block.

These first weeks of the session have not been advantageous for government back benchers. Only John Reid, the young member from Kenora-Rainy River, and Robert Stanbury of Scarborough, have shown that they may have more flair and ideas than average.

Two New Democrats, John Gilbert, the lawyer from Broadview, and Ed Schreyer, the political scientist from Springfield, are obviously solid, diligent additions. Neither has David Lewis' thunder of oratory but given electoral survival, these two seem certain to become important members of the House.

To return to Jean Marchand. He has a compulsive honesty in view and expression and an easy sureness on his feet that is unique. On his department's estimates, he handled such difficult fellows as David Orlitzky, Richard Bell, Ralph Cowan and Frank Howard with candor.

For example, he remarked that he found in reviewing cases where people had been rejected as immigrants for certain activities that he himself had been guilty of such activities. Andy Brewin pointed out that every few years complaints surge up over immigration, then the Government promises reviews and white papers and nothing ensues.

With a rare realism, Mr. Marchand said that in a couple of years the same charges and the same situation would recur. Very true. In less than 200 words, he put the limitations and hypocrisy of our present immigration policy, set out the reasons for it and said that he would do something about it.

So far, he has been the best new man of this season. Given all our other tumults and despairs, we can hope with some real hope that he may be the man for all seasons.

M. Pelletier has been more the audience than the participant — much more conscious than his friends of the strangeness and the minutiae of Parliament.

Two new Quebec members, J. A. Mongrain, the independent from Three Rivers, and Paul Beaureau, the Conservative who took Yvon Dupuis' seat, have a smooth competence, undoubtedly gained in local and provincial politics. It reminds me of Lionel Chevrier. Since each man is middle-aged, there isn't much long-term future for them in federal politics.

Only two of the new English-speaking Tories, Louis Brand of Saskatoon and Bud Sherman of Winnipeg South, seem to have the ego and drive that augurs a political future. Each has that initial requirement—pleasure at one's own voice — which carries a neophyte into performance and recognizable attitudes.

I watched Sherman bemuse and confuse one of Canada's most able advocates, Ian Sin-

U.S. Leadership Finally Taking New Look at China

By WILLIAM R. FRYE, Times UN Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS — The leadership community in the United States set out last week to take a hard new look at China policy.

This searching reappraisal was touched off by a series of public hearings in the Senate foreign relations committee. It had, however, been ripe to occur for some time, and indeed, in smaller circles such as the Council on Foreign Relations, had already been under way.

Nothing in the field of world affairs had been quite so obvious for quite so long as that the United States' China policy was failing to achieve its objectives.

By political and economic isolation of the China mainland, the Communist regime was to have been kept weak and off balance, vulnerable to counterrevolution.

Red China's industrial development, and hence its military base, was to have been decisively constrained, its international standing, and thus its appeal to the overseas Chinese, was to have been minimized.

Little of this has in fact been achieved. Red China's growth as a major menace has been slowed, but not prevented. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara predicted this past week that within two to three years Peking will be a meaningful nuclear threat to everyone within 700 miles of its frontiers.

The one favorable development of the past 15 years—the split between Moscow and Peking—was not produced, though it may have been intensified, by the American policy of boycott. Today, Sino-Soviet antagonism generates its own momentum.

Quite apart from whether the policy of boycott is effective, it may soon no longer be feasible. It depends on co-operation from other nations, which is fast becoming more and more difficult to obtain. It may well be impossible, for example, to bar Peking from the UN in 1966.

Alternatives

Analysts therefore are searching for an alternative. The two which they offered this past week were, in essence, containment and accommodation.

Containment is a variant of isolation, with the difference that it does not necessarily involve non-recognition. The United States and its allies contained the Soviet Union in the '40s and '50s while maintaining diplomatic relations as national强人.

Accommodation, such as is suggested—in varying forms—by Senator J. William Fulbright, UN Secretary-General U Thant, and the General Board of the National Council of Churches, would involve a disengagement of American power from Southeast Asia, a lifting of barriers to Red China's UN membership, diplomatic recognition and some kind of adjustment of Chinese-American differences over Formosa.

Neither option offers assurance of early success.

Even if contained in Viet Nam, the Chinese could break into Laos, Thailand or India, or thrust into Soviet-dominated Mongolia (as some reports have them already doing.)

Even if accommodation were offered, there is no assurance the Chinese would respond. They could rebuff recognition, refuse a UN seat, and score mere neutralization.

Entitled "Why the Pound Is Weak," the editorial listed 27 reasons in a catalogue of condemnation that took both major parties to task for not having the courage "to face the British people with the truth."

The indictment was most surely written by Sir William Haley, editor of The Times, who on past occasion has initiated national debates with similarly biting leading articles.

The Times' editorial also warned that if "a Conservative government is returned after so short a spell of opposition, the workers are likely to resume their class warfare."

The paper concluded with an all-embracing condemnation, declaring that the pound was weak because "for 20 years leadership has been lacking; soft words have been substituted for hard facts; exhortation has never been followed by deeds; rights have come before responsibility; the national philosophy has been all talk and no give."

'Comparatively Speaking' Colombia Now Peaceful

BOGOTA — Some 200 bandoleros and guerrillas are roaming through Colombia.

But President Guillermo Leon Valencia says the fact there are so few of them prowling this nation of 18,000,000 means the land is virtually at peace.

There has been sporadic violence and more is expected during the current congressional and presidential election campaigns. Already lives have been lost in machine-gun ambushes. Heads have been lopped with machetes.

An insurrection outfit drawing most of its emotions and some of its tactics from Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro may try to wreck the electoral processes with urban and rural terrorism.

But Valencia maintains that comparatively speaking the country is quiet.

He compares the 200 outlaws, in three gangs, now active with the 3,000 outlaws, in 56 gangs, who were defying his government's law and order when he took office Aug. 7, 1962.

A Comparison

Similarly, the 1,000 Colombians — outlaws, victims and lawmen — who died because of bandit and guerrilla activity in 1965 seem few when compared to another recent statistic: The annual average of anywhere between 6,000 and 13,500 political slayings in the 1949-58 decade of La Violencia.

Valencia is correct in classifying the current violence into two categories:

1. Pro-Communist guerrilla and terrorist activity.

2. Entrenched outlawry.

Recent events have drawn this line clearly.

In the first category, Rev. Camilo Torres, a handsome, spell-binding young Roman Catholic priest, traded his cassock for a carbine and joined the guerrillas of the National Liberation Army.

A negotiated disengagement from Southeast Asia under conditions of neutralization, as Fulbright has proposed, would not be incompatible with containment of China at a new and more easily defensible frontier, it is pointed out, where American sea and air power would be a more significant factor.

It should not be beyond the ingenuity of diplomats to explore such possibilities, nor beyond the range of political feasibility to put them into effect, it is argued.

This group has vowed to wreck the elections.

Darling of the restless students of the National University, where once he served as chaplain, Torre's revolutionary oratory had already scandalized the conservative hierarchy of the Colombian church. They had stripped him of all his priestly responsibilities save celibacy.

Valencia contentedly calculated Torres has thrown away his big revolutionary advantage: "An extremist, revolution-named Conejo, or Rabbit, could not subdue his itchy trigger finger.

Breaking all Tijeras' orders, he started shooting.

Eder's bodyguard flung himself from his horse and opened up on the would-be kidnappers. Within seconds Eder was mortally wounded, his bodyguard dead and the 4,000,000-peso kidnap plot a shattered dream.

Point of the bloody incident, as far as Valencia's cataloguing of Colombian violence is concerned, was that these millions of pesos were not to be for the benefit of any organized subversive movement.

Two Exceptions

With only two exceptions, those responsible for Colombia's most ambitious kidnap plot to date were Communists only in the sense that they planned to share Eder's wealth. Gustavo Mejia Gonzales drew six years for complicity in the kidnapping attempt and Saul de Jesus Adober drew 4½.

Mejia Gonzalez is a member of the department's parliament of Cauca. Adober is a councilman of a municipality adjacent to the Eder hacienda.

Both are members of the opposition Liberal Revolutionary Movement (MRL), a party involved in the current political contests, both knew Tijeras' plans, both helped him with supplies and neither said a word to the authorities.

These instances blur Valencia's line between Fidelista guerrillas and career bandits. Another blur is the reported common cause Torres' ELN, of the proclaimed idealistic left, is making with rightist dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla.

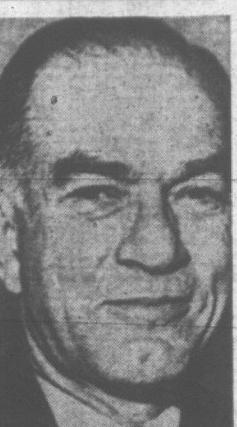

Bearing Valencia's classifications in mind, news of political violence in Colombia in forthcoming weeks should be read with the following qualifications:

1. Peace is relative, and in relation to recent years Colombia is peaceful;

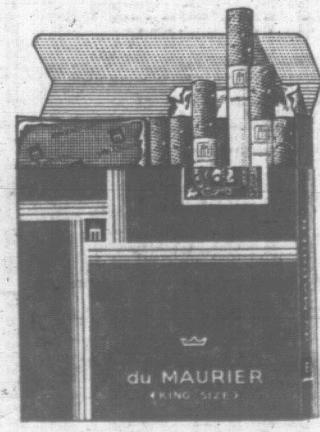

2. Force of habit, more than communism, leads Colombia outlaws to shoot soldiers and policemen wearing the uniform of the central government in Bogota;

3. Ex-priest Camilo Torres, relaxing at a distant hacienda, loves to lift a glass of aguardiente and sing the marching, fighting songs of Fidel Castro's Cuban revolution as rousing as they have been delivered anywhere.

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. will build a $12,000,000 two-tower office building which will be the largest in Vancouver.

The company and Grosvenor Laing C.B.C. Ltd., which will lease the 300,000 square feet of rentable space in the building through a subsidiary, applied for a development permit from the city Monday.

Proposal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Protection against wildcat strikes is being sought by the B.C. forest industry.

John M. Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations Ltd., said Monday he will call for arbitration boards to adjudicate any allegedly illegal work stoppage and levy damages against the guilty party.

A plan to this effect will be brought up when contract negotiations open Wednesday with the International Woodworkers of America.

"For many reasons, including a breakdown in the authority of the IWA's regional council over its locals, we do not get this protection in B.C. The union asks for and expects guaranteed benefits but gives no guarantee of industrial peace in return," Mr. Billings said.

"We believe reference to an arbitration board which will fix blame and costs will bring this whole question into perspective and result in a more amicable administration of our labor agreements during the course of the contract," he said.

Only 4 Days to Go To Find a Volunteer

Greater Victoria's famous surplus food store is still lacking a full-time volunteer to run the operation.

As a result the stall will close its doors for the first time in 17 years next Saturday.

That's the day Mrs. E. E. Harper, operator of the stall for the past 13 years, retires. It is also the day that five regular helpers, the youngest of them 72, decide a rest is in order.

But for her final day working on the stall, Mrs. Harper is saying what she's always said:

"We're just hoping good citizens will contribute to the stall as usual."

"I know it's a bad time of year for gardens," she went on.

"But I notice a few people cleaning out their deep freezers."

"Any fruit that they have bottled and can spare, as well," the stall would be glad of, she added.

"Any good food is welcome."

Donations to the stall, at 732-A Cormorant, can be picked up by calling Mrs. Harper, 5635 Pat Bay Highway, at 658-8177.

At present the stall is looking after the needs of 150 families in the Greater Victoria area. It has looked after as many as 300 in tough times.

Mrs. Harper says the volunteer replacing her, if one can be found, must be a woman with plenty of free time, a car and an understanding heart and husband.

The community at large has five days in which to find such a woman.

Albertans Will Pay Higher Hospital Fee

EDMONTON (CP) — Albertans will be charged a daily deterrent fee of $2.50 and a $5 admittance fee in all acute treatment hospitals in the province under the provincial hospital insurance plan beginning July 1.

Health Minister Ross announced the increase in the legislature Friday. In the same speech he said the Alberta health care program, formerly the Alberta medical insurance plan, will add new insured services and expand subsidies or premiums of low-income citizens. These changes also take effect July 1.

Dr. Ross said the daily hospital fee is being increased to bring the patient's portion of hospital expenses more in line with spiralling hospital costs. Present deterrent fees range from $1.60 to $2 daily, depending on the hospital, and there is no admittance fee.

He said the $1.50 per diem fee at auxiliary (chronic care) hospitals will be unchanged.

'Dragon' Resigns

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The grand dragon of the white supremacist Ku Klux Klan in Texas has resigned, declaring the organization is "bent on violence." A new Klan head was elected Sunday but Klansmen refused to identify him.

A veteran of World War I, he was a member of Saanich Peninsula Branch No. 37, Royal Canadian Legion.

He is survived by two daughters, Miss Beryl Corry and Miss Patricia Corry, at home; a brother, Ernest, in the city; sisters, Mrs. S. H. (Winnifred) Grist, Mrs. H. L. (Alice) Smith, Mrs. N. C. (Muriel) Stewart, all of Victoria, and Mrs. C. J. (Kathleen) Fredericks of Vancouver; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 1 p.m. in Sands' Memorial Chapel of Chimes. Interment in Royal Oak Burial Park will follow.

The B.C. education department is neglecting primary and elementary classes, said Lois Hagen (NDP — Grand Forks-Greenwood) Monday in the legislature.

The teacher shortage also came under fire from the opposition member:

"We have been living off the programs and training facilities of other countries for many years. It is time we had sufficient facilities of our own."

Mrs. Hagen asked whether teacher training clubs in the schools have provided satisfactory numbers of teacher recruitment material, and why more people generally were not being attracted to teaching as a profession.

In addition, teachers are not being granted the help nor the salaries their jobs require, and are not being shown as a professional body as they should be.

She felt too much time was being spent on the parts of teaching staffs performing non-teaching duties such as lunch room supervision.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said special efforts are made to increase the number of teachers and 20 per cent of B.C. university students enter the field of education — the highest ratio in Canada.

"While I agree that the pupil-teacher ratio still is too high, it is being reduced," he added.

Grain Sits in Warehouses While People Go Hungry

By JOE MCGOWAN JR.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Completing a journey halfway around the world, a freighter tied up at Bombay with thousands of tons of wheat to help feed India's hungry millions.

program, principally in the form of wheat and wheat flour, is allocating an estimated $30,000,000 worth of aid to India in the 1966-67 fiscal year.

CANADA ADDS GIFT

Long black suction tubes snaked into the ship's holds. At the other end of the tubes, the fast-moving 26th century truck snack into the past and all but stopped.

On the receiving end were Indian longshoremen wielding tin cans and burlap bags. They stooped, laboriously scooped, bagged and weighed the grain, then hoisted 200-pound bags onto their heads and trotted outside.

The grain was en route to villages in the interior—but slowly.

By rickety truck, train, oxen and riverboat, grain is moving inland. The trip for much of it takes longer, for example, than the 30-day voyage from North American ports to dockside in India.

Promises of shipments to India have greatly reduced the fear of famine.

seams, and one or two split open.

OFFICIALS NOT READY

No provision had been made for distributing the wheat, although the Phalodi area is described as the most seriously affected of the state's hunger areas. Government officials said they were at work organizing a half dozen or so ration shops in outlying villages.

Then the grain would move by truck and jeep—perhaps on camel back—to the villages. This spectacle, repeated all over India, has shown American officials it is not enough to grow wheat and deliver it to India.

United States, accordingly, is closely involved in a wheatfield-to-mouth movement of grain.

In normal times, American grain arrives at the rate of 600,000 tons monthly. Emergency shipments last year hit about 350,000 tons in one month. Now it's hoped to move as much as 1,200,000 tons through the ports monthly, beginning in April.

Six freight cars arrived with some 400 tons of wheat which had been unloaded at the Gulf of Kutch, 450 miles south.

The wheat cars spent one day on the siding. Unloading by barefoot laborers took two days.

Crows flew down and thrust their beaks into the bags.

On the fourth morning, two-wheel carts pulled by pairs of brahma bulls lined up and the bags were loaded, nine to a cart. They were taken to a warehouse lacking rodent preventives.

Mr. White said a covered area and storage shed would be built on at a later date.

Each time the bags were moved, grain seeped from the

ONE-ACT PLAYS SET

Students of Claremont Senior Secondary School will present three one-act plays Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium of Royal Oak Secondary School.

Pipe o' the May, an Irish fantasy by James Facos, and Sorry, Wrong Number, a modern suspense drama by Lucille Fletcher, will be presented along with La Peasant, a medieval farce.

The two first plays were presented recently at the Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival.

TOUGHEN UP NOW FOR THE BIG RIDE

All you rough riders can relax — Gordon City Horsemen's Club announced today it is holding its popular three-day 100-mile trail ride again this year.

But you'd best not relax too long because the dates for the ride are May 27 to 30 which leaves only 2½ months for rider as well as mount to make themselves leather-like for the rigors of the event.

It will be the fifth annual ride, and as was the case last year, the number participating will be restricted because of unwieldy numbers in earlier rides.

Details of this year's ride have not been worked out completely, but it is expected to take the same format as the last two rides—the first day's ride was from Langford into a base camp in the Sooke Hills where day-long rides originated on the second and third days. Hot breakfasts and dinners were provided at the base camp while lunches were carried with the riders.

Club officials said the ride will use logging roads and established trails, although some blazing will be carried out during the Easter weekend over areas that have not been covered previously.

New president of the Gordon City club is Gordon Linfield, and other officers for the year are: vice-president Roy Jewell; secretary Sheila Linfield; treasurer, D. A. Hillis; executive members, Trudy Hillis, Ted Donaldson, Dick Cook and Mark Copinger.

The club is planning a day-long, open to all comers, in fields at 1535 Ash Road, Mt. Douglas, where the Linfields reside. It will be held on Sunday, March 27, starting at 1 p.m.

The club also announced it is seeking new members who will be welcome at the next general meeting which is scheduled on Tuesday, March 22, at 8 p.m. at St. Christopher's Hall, Carey and Tillicum Roads. After a business session, horse films will be shown.

Global Television Plans Bring Warning

LONDON (Reuters) — Global, to launch a system of world-spanning communications satellites by 1968.

Eurospace, made up of 160 members of European industry engaged in aerospace work, published a memorandum here calling for urgent action to make sure that Europe plays its own major role in space before it is too late.

Intelsat's space communications system provides at present for the use of Early Bird-type satellites which Eurospace said are not powerful enough to have noteworthy political or economic repercussions.

But the situation would change radically from the moment much more communication satellites are put into use, the Eurospace memorandum declared.

Bill Raisch, who plays the one-armed man in The Fugitive on TV, was a dancer until he lost his arm in the Second World War.

Various social functions and workshops are scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Feature speaker will be Edward Lindsey of Laurenceburg, Tenn., first vice-president of Lions International. Mr. Lindsey is president-elect of Lions International and will take office in July.

Cribbens At the Movies

WHERE THE SPIES ARE

Comedy Drama

Odeon Theatre

The teacher shortage is always with us, as is the shortage of doctors, dentists, clergymen and qualified sword-swallowers.

Now we have the shortage of trained espionage agents—and because of it a mild-mannered English doctor (David Niven) is pressed into the service of his country and sent on a dangerous mission to Beirut.

Ostensibly he is there to attend a high-level medical convention, but the British Secret Service has him working on the threatened assassination of a pro-British prince, which could put the skids under an oil treaty between Britain and the Middle East.

Dr. Niven is well-equipped for the mission. He has a radio-transmitter concealed in a hollow tooth, a ring on his finger which temporarily blinds his assailants, a fountain pen containing a truth serum, and a watch inscribed "From Uncle With Love."

Just as the James Bond Movies are a spoof on the old-style spy drama, David Niven is a spoof on James Bond. But, whereas Bond is cool and in calculable and possessed of infinite resources, Niven is a faltering amateur who blunders from one death trap to another.

An experienced British spy (Nigel Davenport) advises him to go back to medicine before he is slain, but it is Davenport who dies and Dr. Niven presses on relentlessly.

The sex appeal, now considered essential to every spy drama, is well and capably supplied by Francoise Dorleac. She is working for the other side of the curtain and has all the natural endowments required to seduce Dr. Niven—or any other normal man.

The enemies of democracy kidnap Dr. Niven after he foils the plot to murder the pro-British prince, and he is taken aboard a plane bound for Soviet Russia.

Dr. Niven's radioactive tooth gets busy and the British Secret Service enlists the help of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in having the plane landed in a snowy outpost of northern Canada. Compared with the James Bond epics, this is a rather leisurely spy drama and, for that reason perhaps, it seems more authentic.

She's Quick on Draw And Can Fly a DC-3

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON (AP) — Imagine a premier with a wife who can cook, draw a gun in Wyatt Earp style, co-pilot a DC-3, speak three languages, and is only 24

The premier is Nguyen Cao

Ky, 35. He is also air vice-marshal and commander of the South Vietnamese Air Force.

His wife, Mai Ky, combines the cool grace of a duchess with the bubbly spirit of a pixie and her home is a drab barracks at the big air base of Tan Son

Nhat.

Inside the house with Mai is her seven-month-old daughter,

Duyen, Ky's two sons from his previous marriage are apt to be kicking a football around.

It is a primitive home though redecorated when the Kys married. Ky picked up the tab and his wife says "we are paying it back so much a month."

Ky cut her own wages by half when he took this job last July and also announced he would not be a candidate for the premier's office when elections are held in 1967.

Mai rather hopes he means it.

A Vietnamese airline hostess for three years, Mai met the general—the way he likes to be addressed—at an officers' ball.

"I just try to do everything

my husband wants to do," Mai said. "I can't do all of it of course. But I do serve as co-pilot on the DC-3 when we fly and I do my best to share everyting."

WON'T RECOGNIZE 'TITLE FIGHT'

British Boxing Board Can Find Plenty of Support

TORONTO (CP)—The British Boxing Board of Control said Monday it is trying to line up opposition to calling the Cassius Clay—George Chuvalo heavyweight bout a title fight.

It doesn't have to look far.

Already refusing to recognize the fight, slated for Maple Leaf Gardens here March 29, are the World Boxing Association and Merv McKenzie of Toronto, Ontario athletic commissioner.

Chuvalo, Canadian heavy-weight champion from Toronto—ranked 10th by the WBA—stepped in after WBA title-holder Ernie Terrell of Chicago backed out in a dispute over terms.

The BBBC recognizes Clay, from Louisville, Ky., as world champ, but will not recognize his fight with Chuvalo as a title clash. In denouncing Chuvalo as a contender, the BBBC said in a statement Monday:

"The board still recognizes Clay as the champion but what we are trying to do is to get the controlling bodies throughout the whole world not to recognize this fight."

"The circumstances and ramifications which have arisen in connection with the Clay-Chuvalo contest are, in the view of the board, undignified, degrading and detrimental to the interests of the sport and are to be deplored."

The fight between Clay and Terrell was turned down by New York, Chicago, Montreal, Verdun, Que., and other centres because of promotional shortcomings and Clay's remarks about the war in Viet Nam.

Terrell now will defend his WBA title against Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., at New Orleans in May. The WBA has dropped Clay from its list of contenders and made Folley the No. 1 challenger.

Chuvalo, who at 215 weighs five pounds over his fighting weight, is working out in Toronto until the end of the week. Clay is continuing workouts in Miami and is scheduled to see his draft board in Louisville March 17 before coming to Toronto.

Originally declared unfit for army duty, Clay recently was reclassified eligible.

Chuvalo, 28, has lost two of his last three bouts, including a 10-round decision to Eduardo

Corletti of Italy in January and a 15-round verdict to Terrell in a WBA title fight here last November.

Chuvalo's manager, Irving Unger, said Monday he looks on the March 29 fight as a title affair.

"Clay is recognized by most of the world as the real champion," he said, "so if George beats him, he'll be the champ."

Bag of Marks Within Grasp Of Bobby Hull

MONTREAL (CP)—Bobby Hull, whose goal against New York Rangers last Saturday broke two National Hockey League records, now stands to break at least two more in the remaining eight games Chicago Black Hawks have to play.

Hull's goal, which came on his 303rd shot of the season, gave him sole possession of the record for most goals in a season which he had held jointly with Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, former Montreal Canadiens stars. Hull had reached the 50-goal mark previously in 1961-62.

The goal also broke a record set in 1953-54 by Camille Henry of New York of 20 power-play goals in a season. The shot was Hull's 21st power-play goal.

Hull got another goal Sunday night to raise his total to 91, and his points total to 91.

NHL statistics released today show that his nearest rivals, Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings and Chicago's Stan Mikita, are tied for second place in the individual points race with 68 points each.

NEEDS SIX POINTS

If Hull gets only six more points, enough to raise his total to 97, he will have broken a 96-point season record set in 1958-59 by Dickie Moore of Montreal.

If he can finish the season more than 24 points ahead of his nearest rival, he will have broken a 24-point lead record set by Gordie Howe of Detroit over Ted Lindsay in 1952-53.

Over the season so far, Hull has picked up an average of 1.6 points a game. If he continues this pace, he would finish with at least 103 points.

Ullman picked up a goal and an assist to move into the second-place tie with Mikita. Mikita got one goal in the three games last week.

Howe got an assist in Sunday's game to give him 67 points and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal got a goal to stay close behind Howe with 66 points. Jean Beliveau of Montreal has 64 points, Alex Delvecchio of Detroit has 62 and Bob Nevin of New York has 58.

While Montreal dropped two of their last three games, Chicago, more relaxed after the tension of Hull's record quest was over, won two, bringing them to within a point of the 'Worst Refereeing I've Ever Seen' Says Martin

WINNIPEG (CP) — Officiating during the 1966 world hockey championships remained under fire Monday as Canada's national team arrived here from Europe.

"One would get the impression that it was a fix," said Seth Martin of Rossland, B.C., at the Winnipeg International Airport. Martin, was chosen outstanding goaltender at the Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, tournament which ended Sunday.

"It was the worst refereeing I've ever seen in international hockey," said Martin of his team's 2-1 loss to Czechoslovakia which shattered Canada's hopes of winning the title for the first time since 1961.

Canada finished third behind champion Russia and Czechoslovakia.

Defenceman Gary Begg, who was named to the tournament all-star team with Martin and

PLAQUE TO HONOR EX-OAK BAY REEVE

A memorial to former Oak Bay Reeve and Liberal MLA Archibald Gibbs will probably be erected in front of Oak Bay municipal hall.

The parks committee Monday considered a request from Oak Bay Lady Laurier Club asking for a suitable memorial site.

The club announced it would like to set up a plaque and centennial rose bushes.

Engineer Geoff White suggested the front of the hall and the committee decided to recommend the site to council.

U.S. SURVEY SHOWS

More Flexible Stand On Viet War Favored

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A Stanford University professor says results of a privately financed U.S. survey show most of those interviewed favor a more flexible U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Sidney Verba, one of seven Stanford social scientists who conducted the survey under the sponsorship of the University of Chicago's national opinion research centre, reported Monday that 88 per cent of 1,474 persons interviewed supported negotiations with the Viet Cong, if it is willing.

Verba said other findings were that 70 per cent would support a truce in Viet Nam arranged by the United Nations; 54 per cent would back free South Vietnamese elections even if the Viet Cong might win, and 52 per cent would agree to Viet Cong participation in a coalition government.

The independent survey indicated 61 per cent of those interviewed backed President Johnson's handling of the Viet Nam situation, while 29 per cent were opposed and 10 per cent had no opinion, Verba said.

"While Americans now are clearly opposed to major escalation of the conflict, they also oppose other extreme alternatives," Verba said. "Thus four out of five oppose unilateral American withdrawal followed by a Communist takeover, and a similar proportion do not want to see the United States abandon its commitment to other Asian countries."

VIET NAM WAR 'UNWINNABLE' SAYS AUSSIE

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australian Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell said today the Viet Nam war was unwinable.

He clashed with Prime Minister Harold Holt in the House of Representatives over sending Australian conscripts to fight in Viet Nam.

The Viet Nam conflict was "an unwinable war in which conscripted kids, if they don't lose their lives, lose their health," he declared.

Holt called attacks by the Labor party opposition on his Viet Nam policy "mischievous and misleading."

He said conscripts would make up about 30 per cent of the 4,500-man Australian task force for Viet Nam. About one in six of the 8,400 national servicemen conscripted would serve in Viet Nam, he said.

KEY WITNESS TESTIFIES:

'I Don't Recall' Reply To Stock Transaction

By JOHN LeBLANC

VANCOUVER (CP) — A judicial inquiry ran into memory lapses from a key witness Monday in attempting to track down the way 10,000 shares of Eastern Ontario Natural Gas Co. stock were provided for Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The judge's fitness to continue on the bench after receiving a $117,000 windfall from the company — which got a franchise from Sudbury while he was its mayor — is being investigated by Ivan C. Rand, retired member of the Supreme Court of Canada. He will report to the federal government for Parliament, the only body that can remove a high judge.

As the unprecedented inquiry opened Monday, Commissioner Rand had difficulty getting circumstances of the stock deal from Spencer Clark of Seattle, Wash., an original NONG promoter and now chairman of the much-investigated company under the name of Northern and Central Gas Co.

Mr. Clark could not remember signing a letter offering the then mayor Landreville a low-priced option on the stock immediately after the Sudbury city council awarded NONG its long-sought franchise in 1956, though agreed, the letter produced at the hearing bore his signature.

John McGraw, head of Continental, is to testify when the inquiry moves to Toronto next month.

Mr. Clark told the commissioner he himself does not know whether the Landreville block came out of the Convesto account. He thought Continental was getting the shares cheaply because the firm could be helpful to NONG when it would later be marketing its stock generally.

"I never entered my mind where they (the shares) were going," he told Mr. Morrow.

He also could not recall whether there had been any discussion with Mayor Landreville about the option up to the time the offer was made — which would cover the critical period before the franchise passed the city council.

"I would think the answer is no," he added.

He said the stock offer had been made in the first place because he and Faris hoped to interest the then mayor in joining the company as an executive and they felt it would "make sense" to extend to him the same kind of stock deal other executives were getting. He didn't know who made the overtures.

When Mr. Landreville was offered the Supreme Court appointment in September, 1956, Mr. Clark said, the mayor asked him and his partner whether he should refuse the bench offer in view of his possible prospects with NONG and was told he should take "the bird in the hand" because of the company's then-certain outlook.

He quoted the mayor as saying: "If I accept, what happens to my option?"

Mr. Clark said he replied that it was a firm commitment and "we'll see it through."

After the mayor went to the court, according to a letter produced by the commission lawyer, he advised Faris he would continue an active interest in NONG and was keeping the option letter "actively in my

Rally Demands Purge of Reds

JAKARTA (Reuters) — A mass rally of hundreds of thousands of Indonesians today demanded a purge of Communists in the government and radical changes in the administration.

They called for a complete and fundamental change of government within 48 hours.

The demands came in a charter adopted by the rally, called to celebrate Saturday's power handover to army chief Lt.-Gen. Subandrio.

President Sukarno was thanked for his "wisdom" in handing over the reins of government to the general.

Speaker after speaker from student groups and political and other mass organizations condemned the Communist elements in the 100-member cabinet and demanded a purge.

SINGAPORE (AP) — Reliable sources here said they had learned that anti-Communist students in a raid on the foreign ministry in Indonesia last week seized a document that led to the military confrontation with Sukarno. The students turned it over to the army.

The informants gave this account:

The document was signed by Subandrio and Foreign Minister Chen Yi of China. Subandrio was to use his forces to wipe out leading anti-Communist politicians and members of the armed forces. In return China would help Indonesia stage a conference of the new emerging forces in Jakarta. The date of the document was not given.

Sukarno found out about the stolen document Friday at a cabinet session. He left the meeting and with Subandrio flew to his palace at Bogor to discuss what action to take.

Arthur Mayse

Today I am back home, limping on both feet, from the first major exhibition of outdoors gear I've attended since the Victoria sportsman's show dropped into oblivion several years past.

It's a great pity that our local effort had to be abandoned, and perhaps some year, exhibitors' interest and local demand will be hot enough to warrant a renewal. Meanwhile, thanks to fast and frequent ferries, Vancouver is only a skipper distant, and in four connected PNE buildings this week, you can prowl among boats, trailers and related equipment until your feet like mine, are wearied-out.

Queen of the show is a cruiser that boasts a gold-braid skipper to welcome guests aboard, and a $26,000 price tag. At the other end of the scale is a ducky little $59.50 beach-boat scarce large enough to hold a couple of children. Between these extremes, the range of sail-carrying and powered craft is enormous.

The cruiser I mentioned is mahogany planked, which makes her one of the very few wooden boats on display. Among the smaller boats, modern usage favors aluminum for car-top transport, and plastic for trailer launching in lengths up to and even beyond 20 feet.

It was among the fiberglass utility types that I spotted my someday boat.

I told her to wait patiently a while, patted her sweetly-moulded tumblehome, then roved on to gape at a two-seater pneumatic kayak from West Germany. Nearby was an inflatable raft in which a party of McGill medical school adventurers ran the Fraser from Prince George to Hope, including grim Hell's Gate chute.

The inflatables are becoming steadily more popular where extreme light weight and resilience is needed. Also, the canoe is making a brisk comeback. One of a large display was a plastic job which the makers had customized into a convincing replica of birch-bark for a J. Arthur Rank movie set in the Canadian wilds.

Light and versatile, a good canoe is also amazingly seaworthy, and will accommodate a low-horsepower outboard motor, either clamped to a side bracket or, in models built specially for such use, hung on a square stern

From boats, I drifted into trailer country. There too, significant changes were plain to be seen.

In addition to conventional trailers and truck or car-mounted campers, two other rigs are prominently displayed.

One of these is the camping van, a rolling home equipped for comfortable living. You'll undoubtedly see plenty of these on the roads and in the camp grounds this year, along with several brands and types of tent trailer.

Basically, this useful compromise between ground-squatting tent and travel trailer consists of a rectangular aluminum box with two-piece lid. Each half of the lid folds out to form a sleeping ledge. Hoist the tent tucked into the trailer box, secure the tubular metal framework, and you have a snug camp on wheels.

Some of these tent-trailers or trailer-tents are veritable palaces; I spotted one with three separate rooms. Among their virtues, and those of a second type in which the box-top winches up to form a hard roof over fabric sides, is that when collapsed, they tow without blocking off driver visibility astern.

As emergency trailer equipment, a hockock which blandly conceals a chemical toilet could under certain conditions of trailer travel, more than justify its inclusion. So, to the tenter, might a propane combination which feeds a lamp, a tent heater and a stove from the same cylinder.

I've listed only a few items worth seeing at the Vancouver display. If you have a day clear to slip over between now and the March 20 closing date, you'll find all I've mentioned and more, plus a first-rate stage show for $1.50 entrance charge.

Believe me, you'll get your money's worth!

VANDALISM at Centennial Caravan included tearing this intercom unit from the wall by front entrance. It is held by caretaker-driver John Schmidt. The historical display is at Esquimalt Sports Centre today. Most of the damage was done in Victoria.

Graduate Studies Offered by Uvic In Eight Fields

The University of Victoria has released details of its newly-formed school of graduate studies, which will open in September.

Formation of the graduate school, which has been under study since 1962, was first announced last month.

It will offer programs leading to post-graduate degrees in eight fields of study, including psychology which was recently added to the list.

Master of Arts degrees will be available in education, geography, history, linguistics and psychology.

Master of Science degrees will be offered in biology, chemistry, physics and psychology. Doctoral degrees will also be available in certain areas of these subjects.

FARAWAY INQUIRIES

Inquiries from prospective students have already been received from Britain, Formosa, Australia, New Zealand and from all across Canada.

Burgeoning Chain Firm 'Goes Public'

Victoria's newest manufacturing industry today became a public company after a year of development in former Esquimalt bakery.

Atlas Chain Co. Ltd., 754 Fairview, was formed as a limited company last March and plans to start producing a new type of portable power saw cutting chain in May.

Shareholders met this morning and voted unanimously to "go public" because of the interest shown by investors in the firm.

President Douglas J. Levery, one of two principals in the company and co-developers of the new patented chain, said no new share capital is sought.

1,000,000 SHARES

The company is authorized to issue 1,000,000 shares of no par value, $500,000 of which have been sold.

Because of the improvements in traditional chain saw design that are incorporated in the new Lemery chain, considerable interest has been shown by companies already in the business.

A deal has been made to assure Atlas of 12,000 worldwide outlets as soon as production permits and other arrangements are being made that will see Atlas as a Victoria-based manufacturer, franchiser and distributor for the chain in Europe, Russia, Africa, East Asia and other areas.

Man Fined $225 For False Claims

Jean Joseph Thiebaut, address unavailable, was fined $225 in court today for making false unemployment insurance claims.

He pleaded guilty to two counts in December, 1964, and another in January, 1965.

'Full Strength' Display Of Summer Flower Baskets

Victoria's famous hanging flower baskets will not be reduced by 50 per cent this summer after all.

Reporting to the parks committee this morning parks administrator Herbert Warren clarified an earlier statement saying that only 250 baskets would grace city streets this year instead of the normal 500.

"The reduction in baskets, approved in committee last year, applies only to the spring display," he said. "The summer baskets will be at full strength as always."

The first 250 spring baskets will be used only on Douglas Street from the Crystal Garden to Herald and in Centennial Square.

VANDALS HAVE FIELD DAY ON CENTENNIAL CARAVAN

Officials Boil as the Spoilers Toil

By PETE LOUDON

The historical exhibits they need in the B.C. Centennial Caravan, they haven't got.

The leg iron from the old chain gang wore — or a pillow would be handy.

The stocks may not have been used in early British Columbia, but they could be used with good effect today to handle the young vandals who are methodically wrecking the touring display.

Since the show opened Saturday to the public, the spoilers have had a field day.

They tore an intercom unit from the wall.

OBSCENITIES

Young vandals pried the cover from a make-believe gold nugget. They scratched their names on the walls, smeared windows and wrote obscenities in the visitors' book.

They dumped a five-gallon fire extinguisher, filling a passage way with white foam.

And some little devils jumped into the model of the Fraser River. Just for a moment, the two men in charge of the display may have wished the rapids were the real thing.

How could all this happen in the space of two or three days? It's partly due to the fact that 7,000 people converged on the caravan Monday and as many more on Saturday and Sunday.

"I don't think we are going to get very far on that basis," Ald. Stephen said.

HARD TO PATROL

With crowds like that, close supervision of the narrow darkened passages is all but impossible.

Care takers-drivers Dave Bennett and John Schmidt who move and set up the trailer displays and who will take them through the province, say also that local centennial committees are supposed to provide help. But so far it hasn't been arranged on a day-long basis.

They are waiting now for replacement parts for the damaged displays from Vancouver. But even without these items, the free show is

"HARD TO PATROL"

Parks administrator Herbert Warren pointed out that the city "paid a handsome sum of money" for the park in 1965 and had since spent considerable amounts on development.

"We have to be practical," said Ald. Robert Baird. "If it's going to continue as park I don't think we should set a commercial price."

But Mr. Joyce pointed out that there was no other way of establishing a price for undecided parkland.

"As park land it is of no commercial value," he said. "The only way we can establish a price is to appraise it as if it were to be subdivided for houses or apartments."

The committee asked all department heads to prepare full reports on the problem for a future meeting so that a fair price could be established.

Saanich wants to buy the park from the city to enable the municipality to widen road approaches to a proposed new Gorge Bridge.

The two-hour-plus variety program featuring a cast of more than 100 performers is presented by the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League. Last year's show raised more than $3,000 for crippled children.

Ald. Cecil Parrott will represent the city of Victoria at the opening.

A dress-rehearsal played Monday night to a guest audience consisting of Matson Lodge residents, Dockyard Recreation Association members and families of the cast.

The show, which has been completely revamped this year, was a sell-out in 1965.

Students and pensioners will be admitted at half price every night except Saturday.

YESTERDAY

And unless professors at the university have the opportunity to work with advanced students, they will leave.

Admission to the graduate school is set at a minimum 70 per cent average in the last two years of a student's work.

Dr. M. H. Scargill, head of the graduate school, said this is "in line" with admission requirements of graduate schools at other universities, if not higher.

ONLY 65 PER CENT

At the University of Alberta, which has the third largest graduate school in the country, he said, minimum requirement is only 65 per cent.

The Uvic graduate school, then, will be, if anything, more selective about admitting students.

"I think we can afford to be quite choosy," said Dr. Scargill, "and select the students who can contribute to the university as well."

Everything else looks real.

SHAKE HANDS

The animation of the displays adds to the illusion of reality. Captain George Vancouver and Don Quadra shake hands endlessly. Chief factor James Douglas keeps shaking his head as if marvelling at present-day Victoria.

Simon Fraser's men keep paddling without gaining an inch on the canyon cataract.

Recorded narrations tell the stories that go with each display. But some of the exhibits are so skillful no words are needed. Before your eyes a barren Victoria harbor is suddenly shown complete with fort.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Self-Expression Need Stressed by Designer

By Penny Saver

One morning, a moving van deposited a load of furniture and most distressed young homemaker on the lawn of the house across the street. Any moving day is bad enough, but our new neighbor's problems were magnified by the fact that she just didn't know what to do. Chatting over a cup of coffee, I learned that she and her family had, up to this point, been living in furnished apartments, and never had to worry about interior decorations, color schemes, draperies to complement furnishings, and all the other problems that accompany settling into a new home.

After a few cups of coffee, and hearing the wonderful news that I had to tell her, she felt more confident about tackling the job.

The news is this—the vice-president of a large drapery firm, who is also a color consultant and designer for that company, is coming to Victoria to deliver lectures on decorating. His name is Rudolph Alperin, and he will be speaking in one of our downtown stores this Friday and Saturday.

The main objective of these shows is to give you insight to self-expression in decorating. Mr. Alperin feels that the result of home decorating should be pleasing to you, as you are surrounded by it every day.

He will tell you the role that color plays in your life, and present guide posts regarding fabric qualities. These lectures are free, and their purpose is solely to benefit you.

Today, there is no limit to what you can do in the line of home-decorating, as there is such a diversity in colors and prints of fabrics for furniture covering and draperies. Mr. Alperin himself designs printed fabrics. Some of the patterns have been with us for centuries, but they are now presented in today's bright, cheerful colors.

The fabric trend is now cottons of a heavier texture. Material is coated with a stain-resistant resin that nothing can permeate.

With this change from heavy, expensive materials to cottons, the price has dropped considerably. There have been vast improvements in machines and dyes, the quality of the fabric is the same, and historical designs are presented in modern colors. A general price range for a yard of material 48 inches wide is between $2.98 and $4.98. With such a wide range of designs and colors to choose from, at such low prices, there is definitely no limit to what you can do in the field of decorating.

Mr. Alperin will present two scheduled shows on Friday, at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. On Saturday, he'll speak at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Seating capacity, though, is for 125 only. Tickets, which can be obtained by calling the store and leaving your name and address, will be sent out to you free of charge. More shows can be arranged, depending on public demand.

You want some beneficial tips on home-decorating and fabric design? Give Penny a call at 382-3131. She'll tell you where you can get your tickets to these shows that you simply can't pass up.

ADMIT 426 NEW PATIENTS

Hospitalization Increase Reported by VON Director

District director, Miss Elizabeth Riddell, reported at the recent meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses held in Spencerhouse, that 426 patients had been admitted to hospitals in January and February, a slight increase over last year at the same time. During these months, 35 night calls were made, including second visits to patients in acute stages of illness. Hospital referrals totalled 165 from Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's and Gorge Road Hospitals over the two months.

Miss Riddell also reported that Miss Betty Short conducted 15 health counselling sessions at the Silver Threads Service Centre, and a series of prenatal classes. Under the supervision of Mrs. Sylvia John, Mrs. J. R. McKenzie visited 19 patients at the Kiwanis Villa. The consultant physiotherapist made 22 assessment visits with the nurses. Housekeeping service was given to two families, and 248 visits were made to give nursing care.

Post-graduate students from the University of British Columbia and undergraduates from local schools of nursing worked with the nurses during these months, thus becoming more aware of community services.

It was reported that the running costs for cars was the lowest in two years.

The 68th annual general meeting of the VON of Canada will be held in Ottawa's Chateau Laurier May 5 and 6. The Victoria branch proposed that they should be represented by president, J. B. M. Barnum.

A moment's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. J. M. Cameron, who was a member of the board of directors for 30 years.

Feather-light biscuits which have been treated to a flavoring of thyme provide an epicurean touch to this delectable shrimp casserole.

A Made-in-a-Moment Casserole To Capture a Gourmet's Heart

Shrimp is a food we always like to have on our emergency shelf.

A tin of this delectable sea food adds a real luxury touch to a casserole dish. Its flavor is subtle, its color attractive. It's versatile, too. It can appear in any number of guises and expands to almost limitless degrees when "stretched" by the addition of sauce and vegetables.

In fact, we can't think of a better item to have on hand as protection for those moments when, out of the blue, you're called on to produce a mighty meal in a matter of minutes.

This recipe for creamed shrimp with savory biscuits is an excellent recipe for either family eating, company dining or luncheon with "the girls."

The creamed shrimp and vegetable base can be prepared ahead of time and the biscuit ingredients mixed ready for addition of milk. Then, all that remains to do is to finish the biscuit preparation and pop the whole casserole into the oven for a 15-minute to 20-minute baking period. Result—a perfect hot meal-in-one dish which doesn't require elaborate last-minute preparation.

CREAMED SHRIMP WITH SAVORY BISCUITS

Two tins (7½ ounces) large shrimp, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 cup chicken bouillon, 1 tablespoon instant minced onions, 1 tin (10 ounces) whole mushrooms, 1 tin (10 ounces) green peas, drained; 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1½ cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon thyme, ¼ cup shortening, ¾ cup milk. Drain shrimp. Combine butter and flour in top of large double boiler. Add milk and chicken bouillon slowly and cook until thickened. Add instant onions, salt, pepper, mushrooms, green peas and shrimp. Stir well. Pour mixture into a 10-cup casserole. Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. (hot). Mix together into a mixing bowl, the flour, baking powder and salt. Stir in thyme. Cut in shortening until it resembles coarse meal. Add milk all at once. Mix lightly with a fork until well blended. Turn out onto a lightly floured board and knead 10 seconds. Pat or roll to one-inch thickness. Cut with a three-inch floured cutter into eight biscuits. Arrange biscuits on top of creamed shrimp.

Bake 15-20 minutes or until done. Yields 6-8 servings.

DEAR ABBY...

Navy Will Make A Man of Him

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son joined the navy two years ago. He is now assigned to submarine duty. He keeps sending us pictures, and, everyone we show them to say he looks like he has had one too many. The one today really set me to wondering. He is standing between two Japanese girls who look like they're holding him up. Please don't think I am an old fogey who expects his 21-year-old son to be an angel, because I'm not. I thought of writing to the commander of his ship, but I don't know his name. Is there some way I can get someone over there to keep an eye on him so he doesn't get into any trouble? He's always been such a good boy.

PARAGOULD

DEAR PARAGOULD: If there's anything a sailor assigned to submarine duty has plenty of, it's people "keeping an eye on him to see that he doesn't get into trouble." Don't worry, Dad. By this time your son is probably an expert on handling himself in deep water.

DEAR ABBY: My wife took a course in volunteer nursing and she works at a local hospital several days a week. I think she is to be admired for this, but it has created a problem. She has been bringing home scissors, bandages, tape, thermometers, vaseline, and anything she can get her hands on. There is no excuse for this as we can well afford to buy whatever we need in the line of medical supplies. I have told her to quit stealing, but she continues. Should I pack up all the stolen articles and mail them back to the hospital anonymously? I hate to see that stuff around the house. As far as I know she has never stolen anything else.

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Your wife could be suffering from kleptomania, a compulsion to steal. Unlike a common thief, a kleptomaniac will steal things for cause I don't confide in her the way she does in me. She probably thinks I don't trust her. Is there any way I can let her know I DO trust her, but it's not my nature to tell people my private business?

THE SILENT ONE DEAR SILENT: Remain silent. He who excuses himself accuses himself. And beware of the one who "honors" you with his full confidence, expecting that it gives him the right to yours. A "gift" confers no rights.

DEAR ABBY: I'm an old coot, I suppose, up in my 70s, and these Beale haircuts and scraggly females get me down. But I have found a cure. I have a picture album that contains a picture of me when I was 17. I look at this for a few moments, and then I find it's easy to keep my trap shut. Yours,

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

Today I'm back at my desk after two weeks in Jamaica that opened my eyes—and my heart—to a people that revere their Queen and their Canadian friends.

I had been there almost a week before Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip visited Montego Bay on the last stop of their Caribbean cruise. The royal yacht Britannia was plagued as if by insects as she steamed into position before my hotel window, buzzed around by gaily-colored sailboats, festooned with bunting.

I was apprehensive. During the days that preceded the visit I had enjoyed many a talk with my Jamaican friends and it seemed to me that a royal visit, unmarred by incidents, would be a miracle. Jamaica has two political parties. The Labor Party now forms the government while the People's National Party (socialist) makes up the opposition. Because of the general unrest, many members of the opposition had made their position clear, stating that they would boycott the official functions.

Yet, when the yacht appeared and the Queen made her appearance, all seemed to be forgotten.

Tears of a Maid

The pride and fervor that burned in the hearts of the black-faced maids and waiters that jostled me on the hotel balcony was obvious. As we watched the open car that carried the Queen and her husband past my hotel, I saw tears in the eyes of one maid as she rubbed her hand over her face and crooned, "The blessed little one, she's a dahl-ing!"

Even the car that carried the royal pair had been the cause of bad feeling. Sent out from England, the gleaming Austin had set the Jamaican taxpayers back to the tune of $10,000. Taken out on a trial run, it had been in collision with another car, denting a fender.

From various reports, it appears that the driver of the royal car was in error. But, to avoid involvement, the driver had backed the car a few feet from the scene of the accident, and the driver of the other car was duly charged for bad driving and damage to the royal car!

Jamaica's two political parties are headed by cousins but any family agreement is forgotten as the two factions battle for supremacy. Members of the opposition party are hot as they complain of the "lunacy" of allocation of funds to cover the royal visit.

Staggering Unemployment

They tell you of the Jamaican unemployment figures that must be among the highest in the world. They burn as they report that $69,000 was allocated for unemployment relief last winter while $180,000 was earmarked for the Queen's entertainment.

It was rumored that the university students at Kingston would stage a gigantic uprising in protest against the waste of money. Yet, when the royal pair arrived in the Jamaican capital, the charm of both seemed to act like a magical antidote. There was no revolt.

Several of my Jamaican friends were among the parishioners of St. James Church, where the Queen and Prince Philip attended Matins during their last day in Jamaica. They were indignant that they could not attend church services that day. Attendance was by invitation only and several of these highly-prized invitations had been sent to hotels for distribution among their guests, while regular church-goers had to be content to watch on sidewalks as the royal pair entered and left the church.

Yet, they joined the 20,000 people that crammed the city square for the civic reception that followed. Mad with excitement, the crowd stood in the merciless heat, shouting with delight and blinding out the Queen's voice as she spoke over the inadequate amplifying system.

Top Hat and Cutaway

Piqued with curiosity, I waited in the crowd as the guests arrived to take their place on the platform. The people went wild as an incongruous figure mounted the steps, clad in a grey suit with cutaway coat, white shoes and tall top hat.

Grimming with delight, they greeted him with "Dirty Shirt, Dirty Shirt!" In rapid patois, they explained the joke to me.

"Dirty Shirt," whose real name is Arnold Jackson, is a member of Parliament for the District of Hanover. Determined to be one of the people, this politician is a farmer who makes a fetish of visiting his district members in their homes and eating the basic diet of fruits, codfish and curried goat. His shirts are always somewhat the worse for wear and in need of laundering. Small wonder that his admirers thought that he had reached the epitome of worship when he greeted his sovereign in such resplendent finery!

Even the electric lights that festooned the square had been a cause of disgruntlement. The light standards had been erected four days before and several of the taxpayers informed me that at the end of the year they would have an extra charge levied on them to pay for the off-beat lighting.

Last Minute Preparations

Roads in Jamaica are notoriously rough and one could trace the route the royal car would take during the four-day visit by the hasty patching that had been completed hours before. Visiting Lucea (pronounced Lucy) the day before the Queen's arrival, we saw three workmen lethargically finishing the fountain that their sovereign was to officially open. When she left Lucea after this ceremony, the mayor, dressed in colorful robes, did an impromptu jig of delight in the street!

Where we write letters and tell stories at cocktail parties, the Jamaicans prefer to record their incidents in the rhythm of calypso. Since the royal visit, a brand new one is making the rounds. With pithy humor it tells the story of the Queen's chickens!

Certain succulent birds had been sent out from England to provide a meal for the royal pair when they arrived in Kingston. To the consternation of the feast planners, when the crates were opened they were found to be empty! Just the sort of situation to appeal to fun-loving Jamaicans!

Long after press pictures of the royal visit have yellowed, it's safe to bet that "The Queen's Chickens" will still be strummed and sung around the West Indian island.

CHALLENGE REQUIRED TO KEEP MEMBERS

GROUPS NEED LOCAL PROJECTS

The question of why Canada's national women's organizations are having trouble getting and keeping members seems to boil down to what local branches offer members to do.

The national officers argue that the clubs perform valuable services. They raise huge amounts of money, most of which is put to work in useful ways. They reached into Canada's remote corners and into other countries to offer help to a wide community of women.

They act as educationist and voice for women's issues which they often bring to government attention.

WIDE SCOPE

They can do these things because they are big and country-wide, whether they give members a feeling of immediate participation or not.

At the same time, some of their traditional or even founding purposes have been taken from them by the welfare state and by the growth of auxiliaries.

"Every group has discovered the power and value of having a women's committee," said Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto, IODE past president.

Outsiders say they join other groups because local branches of big organizations don't do anything, just hold meetings.

Scalloped edging trimmed the neckline and waist of the dress, which featured an A-line skirt and sleeves ending in lily points. The train cascaded from two self bows at the back. A crystal tiara held the bride's waist-length veil of illusion net, and she carried a cascade bouquet of gold-toned orchids and lilies. A gold locket belonging to the bride's mother, fulfilled the traditions of "something old" and "something borrowed."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Fox, 3852 Cadboro Bay Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Victor Pedde, 3770 Craigmillar Avenue.

Baskets of gold-toned gladioli, white stocks, daffodils and mimosa decorated the church and pews were marked with white satin bows and mimosa blossoms. Soloist Allan Husband sang the "Lord's Prayer," "The Wedding Prayer" and "O Perfect Love" during the service. Rev. N. S. Noel officiated at the service and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

GOLDEN DRESSES

Identical gowns of gold peau de soie were worn by the bride's attendants, maid of honor, Miss Dianne Fitzsimmons, bridesmaids, Miss Jackie Douglass and Miss Sharon Pedde, and flower girl, Janie Gatt. The outfits were floor-length and similar in style to the bride's gown. With them the senior attendants wore toning headpieces of fabric bows with tulle and carried talisman roses and cream-colored hyacinth garlands in their cascade bouquets.

Similar flowers in a colonial bouquet were carried by the little flower girl who wore a floral headpiece.

Three Stars In Recreation Cost $80,000

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The three stars in Victoria's recreational crown cost taxpayers $80,000 in losses last year.

But the picture isn't as bad as first appears in an annual report on the Memorial Arena, the McPherson Playhouse and the Crystal Gardens as compiled by superintendent J. B. Morgan.

The McPherson Playhouse was the costly item with a deficit of $60,000 on the year's operation.

Mr. Morgan points out in his report, tabled Monday at a meeting of the recreation and community service committee, that a deficit of $64,000 had been budgeted for at the start of the year.

For the future as a money maker Mr. Morgan holds out only slight hope for the playhouse.

"With the rental rates now in existence at the Playhouse the revenue potential for any one year cannot be too great," his report states.

In some instances it costs the city money before the event takes place. At the same time operating expenditures can only be reduced so far, then the number of staff and the standard of service are reduced to below minimum requirements leaving the committee open to public criticism."

presented on the three facilities:

The Crystal Gardens, although a very necessary and pleasant gift from the Canadian Pacific Railway, will, I am afraid, be a very expensive item to the city over the next four or five years."

Mr. Morgan adds that the neglect of the building over the past four or five years will be costly to rectify.

"At the time the 1965 budget was presented to council many large repairs were unforeseen due to buried plumbing, concealed wiring and general lack of information available before the budget was presented."

Says Mr. Morgan in his annual report, the first ever

Must Replace Stage Floor

Mr. Morgan warned that more capital expenditures would have to be made on the Playhouse before it was brought to first class condition.

"There is one major item of maintenance and repair that should be carried out in the building and this is the replacement of the stage floor," his report states.

A second gift to the city, Crystal Gardens, also promises to be a costly item before the city can expect it to come close to breaking even.

Revenue Drops After Liquor Ban

One of the revenue problems facing the Crystal is a drop in revenues from normally regular dances.

"Revenue from dances decreased immediately after press releases were made that no liquor would be allowed on the premises," the annual report states. "There are still people within the city who believe a banquet permit (including a liquor serving permit) is not available to their organization or club."

Theft Of Goods Admitted

A man whose board of stolen goods read like a household shopping list in central court Monday admitted seven counts of theft.

Anthony Francis Scott, 528 Constance, was apprehended Saturday outside the Safeway store at 3400 Tillicum after shoplifting two cartons of cigarettes.

Prior to that he took flashbulbs, a clock, nine sweaters, cloths, snap-fasteners, shorts, two other cartons of cigarettes, four packages of meat and a baby blanket from six shops in the Colwood area.

Helping the general financial picture at the arena to no small degree has been a successful season for the Maple Leafs hockey club.

Mr. Morgan credits the club for a hefty increase in revenue from hockey rentals and an equally large increase in concession sales.

At the other end of the scale, and hurting summer revenues, was the failure of the Shamrock lacrosse club to produce a winning team.

"Inter-city lacrosse experienced one of its worst years both spectator and financially," said Mr. Morgan. "Only junior lacrosse showed an increase over 1964."

Low Bid
Too High

Tender of Patterson Construction Ltd. of Victoria in the amount of $61,418 was the lowest of six bids submitted to Saanich school board Monday for the construction of the three-room Elk Lake primary school.

The low tender is almost $2,500 more than the district can afford.

Trustees approved the Patterson bid on the condition that means can be found to bring the total cost down to the $59,000 budgeted for the school. Buildings superintendent Bryan Shaw said this could most likely be accomplished by modifying heating plans for the new building.

Other tenders submitted were: Herb Bate Ltd., $62,609; W. Campbell Ltd., $63,820; H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd., $63,915; Wakeham and Trimble Contractors Ltd., $65,475; E. J.

Anti-Litter Campaign Urged To Halt Dumping of Rubbish

A call for an anti-litter campaign was issued Monday night by the Saanich public works committee.

Coun. William Noel, who admitted he wasn't sure how the problem can be tackled, said he is fed up with people dumping garbage anywhere but in the proper place.

He had found four cartons of rubbish few blocks from his home. Two of them contained oyster shells.

He suggested anyone seeing a person dumping garbage immediately call the police.

Coun. Digby Kier, a lawyer, said the maximum fine is $500 which should prove a deterrent.

Other suggestions included posting anti-litter signs, a central garbage collection point and a Saturday incinerator run by the municipality.

Municipal engineer Neville Life said he has almost finished his report on the merits of public and private garbage disposal and would take note of the points raised.

"Then I think we have got to take the bull by the horns and do something about it," he said.

On another subject, the committee declined to establish a policy of only contracting work to union companies.

A letter from the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council said two companies that recently did municipal work employ non-union men.

This was unfair to union contractors as well as an encouragement to non-union firms, said the council.

Mr. Life said it must be a policy decision to only hire union firms.

It would be possible to enforce with bigger companies, but difficult if not impossible with the many small firms doing a variety of municipal work.

Coun. William Campbell, a contractor, said construction unions have tried to get the Victoria Building Industries Exchange to follow the same policy and it has been turned down.

"Even the unions hire men out to non-union firms," he added.

Another 1,000 To Get Gov't Scholarships

The top 3,500 second class honors students entering B.C. universities this fall will receive provincial government scholarships—1,000 more than at present, Education Minister Leslie Peterson announced Monday.

He also announced that bursaries for university students will be increased and possibly weighted to help out-of-town students more.

And Mr. Peterson said that beginning April 1, the boarding allowance for elementary and secondary school pupils will be boosted by $10 to $40 a month.

He made the announcements in the legislature during scrutiny of his estimates.

$1 MILLION

All government aid to university students and teachers in training will be raised from $780,000 in the current year to $1 million in 1966-67.

Mr. Peterson said the government will continue its program of paying half the tuition through every university year for all students who graduate with first-class honors from all high schools, junior colleges and the Institute of Technology and maintain their standing.

First-class honors start at 80 per cent.

But the present limit to the first 2,500 graduates with second-class honors—who receive a one-third tuition scholarship on entering university—will be raised by 1,000.

This will cost about $150,000 and will cover almost all students in the 70 to 80 per cent category. Second-class honors start at 65 per cent and few if any in the 65 to 70 per cent range are expected to be within the 3,500 group.

"These scholarships are based not on need by an achievement," Mr. Peterson pointed out. "But bursaries will be increased as well... and here we consider need as well as achievement."

The fund for bursaries will be raised by $50,000 to a new total of $290,000 in the coming year.

DOVETAIL

Mr. Peterson said he hoped that provincial and federal student-aid bursary programs could be dovetailed to provide extra assistance for students who have to go out of town to attend a B.C. University.

Mr. Peterson made the announcements after several NDP members attached the $56 increase in university fees this year.

"I think universities are becoming the sanctuary of children of the privileged families," declared Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East). "It is no longer possible for a child of any ordinary working family to go through for even a general degree."

'ESSENTIAL STEP'

"Abolition of all fees is an essential step if we are to have equality of opportunity for our children."

John Squire (NDP—Alberni) said that the present education system advances a pupil on ability up to Grade 12 "and then they change the goal posts and the question no longer is ability but money."

He also read several letters from parents in Zebulon whose children had to board out-of-town to attend high schools at a cost of $90 a month with the school district providing only a $30 subsidy.

Mr. Peterson said he could announce that the provincial government will pay up to $40 a month towards the board of children required by school districts to live away from home while at elementary or secondary schools.

PRESS BARRED

By JIM HUME

The Greater Victoria Centennial Society did so many double reverses Monday evening it lost the press entirely.

Prior to Monday's regular meeting chairman Coun. Art Mebs of Esquimalt announced the press would be barred from the city hall committee room until L. J. Wallace, general chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, and his assistant, Robert Gillespie, had given brief speeches and issued "directives" to the reputedly autonomous Victoria group.

The press, said Mr. Mebs, would then be allowed into the meeting for discussions on (a) the RCMP Musical Ride, (b) the B.C. Centennial Caravan, (c) ways and means of honoring B.C. pioneers and (d) bonfires to be lit by Scouts.

The dates for the RCMP Musical Ride have already been set although the society has as yet been unable to find a place for the ride.

The centennial caravan arrived in the city and has opened its doors for business.

And the Boy Scouts lit their bonfires Friday night.

Coun. Mebs said that after these items were discussed the press would be asked to leave while the society discussed the appointment of a co-ordinator to run the two-year celebrations.

The press, however, would be permitted to return to the committee room as soon as that item was disposed of, to listen to discussion on municipal grants (all municipalities have agreed to chip in 40 cents per capita for the fun and games), the signing of a lease for new office accommodation (the society has been in its new office on Centennial Square for three weeks) and the Centennial Stadium (agreements were signed more than a week ago and the last legislative hurdle cleared to make way for construction).

Mr. Gosley picks up the reins of his new position on April 1 at a salary of $750 a month plus $50 month expenses.

The producer of Royal Air Force shows at Pat Bay Airport during the Second World War, returned to Canada from England in 1947.

Since then he has been active in many local productions.

With the appointment of Mr. Gosley the Centennial Society has ended, at least temporarily, the debate that has raged since the early decision to hire a United States company to run the two-year party.

The U.S. company was to have been hired at a cost in excess of $50,000.

Mr. Gosley said he was an xious to "get the show on the road" now that the debate was over. "We have fiddled around long enough," he said.

One of his projects will be the staging of a pageant with local talent only.

Whatever he stages it will have to be self-supporting.

At a meeting some weeks ago the society decided that all events staged during the next two years would have to pay their own way without underwriting from centennial funds.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

There has been, over the past many months, noisy conflict between the CBC-TV national news staff and the staff of the program This Hour Has Seven Days about complaints Seven Days was getting into news coverage.

A person has but to watch the Sunday evening program of satire and analysis to see the truth of the news item objections.

But only on a program of the Seven Days type could such subjects as Gerda Munsinger and Cassius Clay so judiciously be dissected for public view.

We've complained, in the past, that Seven Days this season has run on a hit-and-miss basis with more misses than hits.

Sunday's was a hit because of the great variety of news subjects available for the program.

If a viewer was disappointed there was no film of the famous German model available, as is expected of the program with a seemingly unlimited budget, then the four-man party at the program's end more than made up for it.

MacLean magazine's Blair Fraser, columnist Douglas Fisher, Southam's Charles Lynch and program co-host Laurier Laparierre spent a third of the program time discussing the sex scandal with L.L. trying to push the discussion to a point of frantic hysteria, in his non-gentle Gallic manner, and an obvious attempt at more headline-making of a story which is already there.

Imagine Laparierre even suggesting the whole affair was a plot against French Canada since only a French-Canadian name (Pierre Sevigny) had been connected with the lascivious Genda.

It is to the credit of sounder and more logical heads (Fraser, Lynch and Fisher) in bringing it down to earth and placing it in proper perspective.

The Florida interview with Cassius Clay was also an illuminating insight of the man who talked himself into a position of ludicrousness. With him carrying the crown, boxing went from bad to worse.

The Igor Gouzenko interview on the program was a complete waste of time. The man's usefulness to this country's security obviously disappeared 20 years ago.

His vacuous comments, while covered in the ridiculous Ku Klux Klan head-robe, took the gloss off his one-time hero mantle.

The program shines when it has something to sink its teeth into and when the staff rises to the challenge.

When Seven Days hits, the success should spur other parts of the corporation's news organization to greater efforts.

Everyone then, but especially the public-at-large, stands to gain.

The Wonderful

World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: In clipping my own miniature poodle, I have only one problem. She won't let me use the clippers on her feet. She just hates it and frights so. Even the professional clipper had the same trouble. Tranquillizers help, but not enough. So I just had what I hope is a good idea. I have used a depilatory cream on my legs for years. Why not use it for April's feet, too? — S.Y.

DEAR S.Y.: A chemical cream may do an excellent job in removing hair from her paws, but there are two possible hazards. First, care must be used to see April doesn't consume any cream. Secondly, the cream must be used for the right length of time; it must be completely removed, and the skin should be carefully checked for any sign of irritation. As April's skin could be more sensitive than yours, it would be safest to have her veterinarian try this paw-pruning technique the first time.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I am getting awfully tired of waiting for Warty to come out of hibernation. Warty is my toad. If I can find him, and warm him up, would he wake up sooner? — N.L.

DEAR N.L.: Just how premature you would be depends upon the species of toad. But if you can find Warty, and warm him slowly, you could bring him around. However, you should be prepared for his not-so-slowly increasing appetite. Depending on his size, of course, a toad in high gear may consume up to 300 insects a day — or (more commonly) a night.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a $25.00 gift certificate to the World Book Encyclopedia and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Barbara A. Bell, age 12, of Des Moines, Iowa, for her question:

Can I Make My Own Terrarium?

The blustery gales of March! The occupant may be a butttempt you to think that the terfly or a cricket, a mantis or a few caterpillars. It may be a salamander or a lazy lizard, a turtle or a couple of frogs. But be sure that the small tenant of your terrarium has plants and living conditions similar to those of his natural surroundings. A frog needs a small pool; a lizard or turtle needs a rock for sun bathing.

Most insects can live in a wide, glass jar, partly filled with soil and growing plants. A terrarium for toads or lizards can be made from an oblong box with glass walls and a removable glass roof. An old fish tank can be used. Start with the groundwork and cover the floor with a layer of small pebbles mixed with chips of charcoal. This will drain off excess moisture and keep the soil from becoming stale and sour.

Needs Light and Moisture

A wide variety of plants thrive in a mixture of equal parts of garden soil, peat moss and clean sand. Life in a boggy terrarium needs more peat, and a desert terrarium is mostly sand. Spoon in a three-inch layer of soil and moisten it with sprinkled water. Place a variety of small-growing plants where they look their best and nestle their roots in the soil. In a week, most of them will be established and you can remove the failures. You may wish to add a tuft of moss, a few pretty shells or a leaf-covered stone.

Your glass-enclosed garden needs light—but place it some distance from the harsh glare of a window. Cover it with its glass lid and watch it grow. When it looks dry, supply a few sprinkles of water. When the glass becomes misty, lift the lid to remove the moist air.

The small tenant for your terrarium may be bought in a pet shop or captured in the wild. In any case, learn all you can about his natural surroundings, his diet and his way of life. Plan to meet all his needs well in advance. If he needs a pool,

It will be sponsored by the Geography Club and will be at 7:30 p.m. in club room A of the Student Union Building on the Gordon Head campus. The public is welcome.

DO-SI-DO EVENTS

Promenader's Prom Highlight of Week

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Highlight of the week for local square dancers is a celebration to be held Friday at 8:30 p.m. in Royal Oak Hall by the Promenaders.

Called the Promenaders' Prom, it has now become almost a tradition on the local square dance scene, and this year will double as the Promenaders' 10th birthday party.

As it's one of the "special events" on their club calendar, the members are preparing well for it, says club president Bill Jells.

Dancing delegations from several local clubs have been invited, including one from the Western Whirlers who will be bent on recapturing their club

DEAR DR. MILLER: What is the best way to clip a budgie's wings so he can't fly? I want him to be able to fly well enough so he won't fall and hurt himself. — P.B.

DEAR P.B.: Clip the tips of all the wing feathers except the first long one (the first primary). This makes flight difficult—but not impossible.

DEAR MR. MILLER: A friend who owns a German shorthair pointer (purebred) is thinking about giving him to me and I am thinking of taking him. It won't alter my decision but his tail isn't docked. I wonder if he can be registered? — C.C.

DEAR C.C.: Registration depends upon hereditary qualifications. Surgical alterations, including tail docking, ear cropping, etc., neither enhance nor detract from the "registerability" of a canine.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Please help us. We have a large problem. You see, my sister has a black rat named Genevieve. She is small but powerful. She attacks cats, birds, and almost anything (but never humans). You see, she attacked our bird and unfortunately it died. Now our cat is terrified of him. Is this normal? — B.P.

DEAR B.P.: Not really. Admittedly, Genevieve is a tough customer. Even so, if your pussy were not part pacifist, the cat, not the rat, would be top dog. If Genevieve should be foolish enough to tour the neighborhood looking for new fields to conquer, her reign of terror would undoubtedly be short.

MACFARLANE ECHOES CHARGES

Education Minister Denies Uvic Treated 'Unfairly'By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

Education Minister Leslie Peterson Monday denied that the University of Victoria has been or will be treated unfairly by government construction grant policies.

He was replying in the legislature to questions raised by Alan Macfarlane (Oak Bay) based on a speech made by Uvic development board official Floyd Fairclough several weeks ago.

Mr. Macfarlane said Uvic had to put up more than $800,000 for acquisition of property while Simon Fraser University received its land free.

Mr. Peterson replied that Burnaby municipality gave SFU its $2 million campus as a gift. He also pointed out that Uvic borrowed its $800,000 against the multi-million-dollar Thomas McPherson bequest.

HELD BACK GRANT

Mr. Macfarlane said the government had held back $500,000 of its promised $2.5 million matching grant for Uvic construction.

Mr. Peterson said Uvic fell behind its construction schedule so it had only drawn $2 million in progressive government payments when the Tri-University Building Fund was set up.

The minister said the government gave a special commitment to the Tri-U fund which was more generous than a matching grant but on the understanding that it superseded all previous matching grant arrangements which both Uvic and the University of B.C.

Mr. Macfarlane said that by 1970 Uvic will need $17.5 million, including the $500,000 matching grant that has been withheld, to meet its building needs for a projected student population of 5,000.

DEFICIT

He said it will receive only $10.9 million from the Tri-U fund, leaving it with a deficit in 1970 of $6.4 million.

Mr. Macfarlane said SFU's per student capital grants by 1970 would equal $2,571 again for Uvic.

The difference between the two is $1,020 per student, and when you multiply that by 5,000 students you get $5.1 million or almost the whole of the building deficit which will accrue by 1970."

"So it becomes apparent that Uvic is not being 'treated fairly' in comparison with Simon Fraser."

Mr. Peterson said there was no discrimination. He said the government grants were based on actual requirements of the universities.

CAMPUS FREE

He added that the provincial government gave the Lansdowne campus for free to Uvic when it achieved university status although it was worth a large sum of money which sooner or later would be realized by the university.

He also said direct comparisons between Uvic and SFU were not fair because all of SFU's buildings are being constructed during a high-cost period whereas Uvic is using the Lansdowne campus which was built at a relatively cheaper price.

Mr. Macfarlane insisted, however, that operating a split campus is more expensive and this at a time when it has the same problem as Simon Fraser in developing its new Gordon Head campus.

"They teach that public life is an honorable profession," the minister said.

"I'm afraid we have some responsibilities ourselves in this respect, responsibilities that unfortunately are being ignored in other places," Mr. Peterson said.

"They teach that public life is an honorable profession," the minister said.

"I am not pointing the finger at any individual but I think we have a duty to improve our public image."

An opposition member took up the minister's hint. "Gundersen," he said.

But Mr. Perrault went on:

TORIES PRESSING

press conference statements, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"There never was a question of security in this matter." Mr. Cardin, by refusing to name names, had made a blanket condemnation of the Diefenbaker cabinet.

"This is fascism at its worst."

MORE WAS POLITICAL

If the Liberals had known about the Munsinger affair, and if it was a question involving national security, why had they been sitting on it for so long?

Strictly for political reasons, Mr. Diefenbaker said, "to use on some future occasion."

Mr. Cardin said he had no intention of blurring out the name Munsinger in the House March 4 or of discussing the case at his press conference Thursday. He had done so under great provocation by the Conservatives.

Mr. Fulton, Mr. Nielsen and David Lewis (NDP - York South) took exception to various aspects of the terms of reference for the judicial inquiry. They called for an all-party House committee to change the terms, saying they should refer directly to all allegations by Mr. Cardin.

Mr. Pearson rejected these demands and called for an end to the emergency debate, technically a series of questions of privilege by Conservative front-benchers. It was urgent for Parliament to return to the nation's business.

Michael Starr, Conservative House leader, shot back: "The prime minister has lost the confidence of this House as far as I'm concerned and any suggestion he has to make has no merit."

Referring to Mr. Cardin's

Nowlan was his friend and had his admiration and respect. Nothing had changed that respects in any way.

But Mr. Pearson did not say that George Nowlan wasn't involved in the Munsinger case. Mr. Cardin said nothing.

Mr. Cardin has charged that "two or more" ministers in the Diefenbaker cabinet were involved with Gerda Munsinger who, Mr. Cardin said, was a security risk.

DOESN'T NAME THEM

He has steadfastly refused to name the "two or more" he says were involved in the alleged sex-and-security affair.

Mr. Knowlan said: "I will have to consider whether I care to sit in this House while my father's name is under such a cloud."

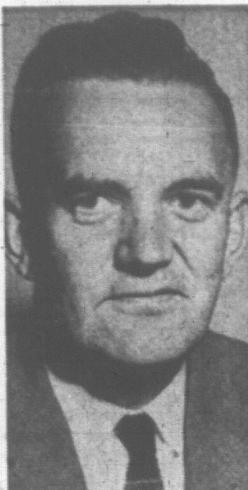

It was the most dramatic and moving moment so far in the Commons debate on the Munsinger affair.

Mr. Nowland said that surely the clearing of his father's name should not be dependent on a serial story 4,000 miles away — a reference to Frau Munsinger selling her story to the highest bidder in West Germany.

Under the act, treaty Indian bands can hold plebiscites on the right to drink liquor. Several bands recently approved such plebiscites.

Non-treaty Indians are allowed liquor privileges.

pension plan lashedCURB WELFARE*Right-Wing Party Needed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Victoria insurance executive said Monday night insurance agents should form their own right-wing political party if necessary to curb what he described as financially ruinous welfare programs touted by existing parties.

Justin Harbord, retiring president of the Insurance Agents' Association of B.C., was speaking at the association's annual meeting.

He said the Canada Pension Plan and compulsory medical insurance are forms of "political chicanery foisted on the people, not for the national good, but purely and simply to increase the popularity of politicians too weak to lead."

Mr. Harbord said Canada desperately needs a voice to the right—the left is more than adequately represented.

There were hundreds of thousands of "thrifty and self-reliant people" unrepresented by the existing political parties with the courage to say "this far and no farther with your welfare statism."

Mr. Harbord said the Canada Pension Plan is a "rotten piece of legislation" and said the young wage earners of this country "should be angry enough . . . to topple governments."

He blamed welfare statism for the brain drain, a "staggering tax burden which will increase," a foreseeable rise in unemployment, domination of Canada by foreign capital and an "almost impossible" export-import situation facing Canadian industry.

Gov't 'Smoke Screen' Irks Pollution Foes

The provincial government is pushing the responsibility for air pollution onto municipalities, an Alberni petitioner claimed today.

Andy Bigg, spokesman for a group of 10 Alberni district residents who appealed to cabinet ministers here Monday, said he came away convinced, "They'll do nothing."

Six thousand people signed petitions in the Alberni recently protesting smoke, smell and chemical fallout from MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company operations there.

Residents claim the pollution dirties clothing, affects gardens and spoils the finish on cars. There have also been complaints blaming the fallout for respiratory diseases.

The attempt to win provincial legislation which would force companies to control such emissions appears futile, according to Mr. Bigg.

He said, after meeting with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark and Resources Minister Ray Williston:

"I feel the provincial government does not intend to enact legislation to control this scourge in the foreseeable future."

Mr. Bigg said he hopes he is proven wrong, but the parting comment from Mr. Williston was "You've got your own procedures under a democratic process."

LOCAL BYLAWS

Mr. Bigg took this to mean as implying it was up to the municipalities to establish their own local bylaws.

"This leaves no doubt in my mind that the government is intending to put up a heavier smoke screen in this matter than the fog of pollution we are battling in the Alberni Valley."

He said only when all citizens unite in a desire to curb such pollution will any solution be found. He urged that every candidate for office in any level of government should be asked to publicly declare himself for a strong pollution control program.

"Then and only then will this province and this country get adequate protection."

Mr. Bigg said Mr. Williston mentioned anti-pollution devices being installed in new plants throughout B.C. but the minister could not be pinned down on whether existing plants would be forced to do likewise.

'COMFORTABLE'

"They are just going to slam the water pollution program back to the federal government and the air pollution problem back to the municipal governments — which is a very comfortable situation for the province."

Grant Comes Late For Autobiography

Minor's Car Forfeited

LAKE COWICHAN — For the first time in this district a magistrate has used his powers under the Liquor Act to forfeit an accused's car to the crown.

Magistrate Colin Anderson made the forfeiture order Saturday against Wayne Coulomb, Lake Cowichan.

Coulomb had pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of beer.

Court was told Coulomb was caught with a case of beer in his car.

NEEDS LONG WAIT

Ice fishermen on Lake Simcoe, Ont., catch an average of three fish for every four hours spent on the ice.

Two weeks after his death Ottawa has confirmed a $35,000 grant to Dr. Peter Kelly of Nanaimo.

The federal centennial commission wanted Dr. Kelly to write his autobiography.

The respected Haida clergyman died here March 2 at the age of 80.

Rev. Robert Gracey of Brechin United Church, a friend and colleague of Dr. Kelly, said he "didn't think the autobiography was formally underway at the time of Dr. Kelly's death."

But Mr. Gracey said Dr. Kelly had been asked by the centennial commission to begin writing it several months ago.

"Dr. Kelly had gone so far as to have several visits with a CBC Vancouver scriptwriter," said Mr. Gracey.

He did not know to what extent the scriptwriter, whose name he did not know, was to help Dr. Kelly with the writing of the book.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved...actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppository or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

5,000 Indian Pupils Integrated

An increasing number of Indian children living on reserves are being integrated into the regular provincial school system, the legislature was told Monday night.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said 5,000 children from reserves were enrolled last year in regular elementary and secondary schools.

He said about 300 are in various vocational schools, a substantial increase from the previous year.

Mr. Peterson said also there were 1 Indians in university courses.

He agreed with Frank Calder (NDP-Alth) that "integration is the ideal."

Earlier, Mr. Calder opposed a suggestion by Cyril Sheld (NDP-Omineca) that a special vocational school be built in the North for Indians to train them for work in pulp mills, mining operations and similar jobs that are opening up in the North.

"A great many of our students have entered vocational schools and are doing very well," he said.

"As an integrationist, I must oppose any separate buildings or segregation of Indian children."

'Sober-Drug' Ready for Market

CHELTENHAM, England (UPI) — A "tasteless" white powder which can be taken with liquor and is guaranteed to reduce the amount of alcohol in the bloodstream by 50 per cent, Monday was being readied to go on general sale soon. A spokesman for the Cotswool Chemical Company Ltd. said the new drug, to sell for 42 cents a portion, only lacked a name.

"Perhaps we'll call it sober-drug," said the spokesman explaining it activated the liver's action in absorbing alcohol.

He said there were no side effects to the drug, to be taken prior to drinking.

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission was told Monday that the president of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. and two business associates made $97,272 profit within 15 months of buying control of Aurora Leasing Corp. Ltd.

Charles Austin, a chartered accountant who worked on Aurora's records for the commission, said Aurora was purchased by C. Powell Morgan, president of Atlantic, from Aurora funds. Mr. Austin was testifying before the royal commission headed by Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court investigating the fall in June, 1965, of the multi-million-dollar Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Mr. Morgan's associates in Aurora Leasing were identified as Harry Wagman and William Walton, chartered accountants.

The commission was told that control of Aurora passed into Mr. Morgan's hands in 1960.

When Atlantic went into receivership, Aurora owed the corporation $12,000,000.

SHOWED IN ACCOUNT

Mr. Austin said the $97,272 profit figure was the excess of receipts over disbursements from a deposit account at a Guaranty Trust Co. office in Toronto in the name of Walton and Wagman in trust.

Mr. Austin said that in September, 1960, Aurora's controlling shareholders George Meeklar and M. J. Lazar agreed to sell their shares to Mr. Morgan for $50,000, and repayment of $110,000 in loans.

The first transaction following

Mr. Morgan's obtaining control of Aurora was the purchase of Valley Music Co. Ltd., formerly known as Cornwall Music Co. Ltd., from George Blacklock, principal shareholder and president.

OWNED MACHINES

Albert Shepherd, commission counsel, reviewing the history of the music company, said Valley Music owned a large number of coin-operated record players.

Having acquired the assets of the company, Aurora then leased the equipment back to Valley Music for 10 years at a monthly rental of $4,000, Mr. Shepherd said.

Mr. Austin produced records which showed Valley Music had shown a profit only once in the years 1953 through 1959. That was in 1957 when it earned $7,302. Losses ranged as high as $48,113.

The $300,000 payment for Valley Music was to be made up of $3,000 cash; promissory notes for $90,000 and repayment of debts in the amount of $64,000 to Traders Finance Corp., $129,000 to Atlantic Acceptance Corp. and $14,000 to Lanier Amusements Ltd.

Mr. Austin said Valley Music took the money from the promissory notes and transferred it in satisfaction of debts to its principal shareholders.

BORROW $207,000

Aurora borrowed $207,000 from Commodore Sales Acceptance, an Atlantic subsidiary, to pay its debts, and the money was paid to Mr. Walton and deposited in his trust account.

After paying its debts, an amount of $39,957 remained, and Mr. Austin said he found no record of this amount being paid to Aurora.

Latin America N-Arms Ban Pact Proposed

MEXICO CITY (Reuters)—A five-nation committee Monday proposed, over the objections of Brazil, a new draft treaty for the denuclearization of Latin America.

The treaty contains three main points, informed sources said. The signatories would agree never to produce or test nuclear bombs or permit their presence on their territory.

The draft treaty was contained in a report by a co-ordination committee made up of Mexico, Brazil, Ecuador, El Salvador and Haiti.

It will be considered by a 19-nation Latin American conference on denuclearization which opens here April 19.

Brazil expressed strong reservations over the proposed treaty, saying that the committee was only empowered to make a broad report of Latin American views on denuclearization and not to draft a treaty.

THIS STRIKE SITUATION ALL UP IN AIR

Pat, Joe and Jim Go Out on Limb

LONDON (AP)—One of four aerial strikers gave up his perch on the end of a 250-foot construction crane today. But three of his companions held on and said they were ready to spend a second chilly night above a building site.

The men—Pat, Joe, Jim and Mick—mounted the crane Monday in protest of pay cuts and spent a shivering night over the construction site.

Mick became exhausted and developed a temperature and it was decided to bring him down.

Scores of sidewalk superintendents gathered beneath the crane in the heart of the city, London's financial district, to watch the quartet take their early morning exercise along the job.

They spent most of the night in the cabin of the crane, warmed by tea and whisky.

which other workers carried up 250 steps to them.

The four men, all steel erectors on an office block, say cuts in their bonuses have halved their weekly pay to £12 ($36).

They refused to give their full names, charging the building industry operates a black-list and they'd never get work again.

Taylor Woodrow, the contractor, stopped all work on the $25,000 building. The company said bonuses had been cut and 56 of the 350 workers on the project had been dismissed because of "absurdly low productivity levels."

A company spokesman said the firm has been negotiating with the Transport and General Workers Union, to which the men belong, since Christmas.

'PEPPER' BANDITS GET $600,000

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI)—Three bandits tossed pepper in the eyes of Bank of Indochina employees at Vientiane airport today and made off with more than $600,000.

The bank personnel were unloading the cash from a vehicle to put aboard a Royal Air Lao plane bound for Bangkok when the robbers struck, police said. The theft occurred 30 minutes before the plane was due to take off.

Police said the robbers, believed to be French, had a vehicle waiting at the airport for the escape.

After throwing pepper into the eyes of the bank employees, the three men snatched eight bundles of cash and fled.

Officers said the haul included cheques that were being sent to New York via Bangkok along with the cash.

Police believed it was the first robbery ever committed by foreigners in Laos.

OTTAWA-BOUND TODAY

Envoy Tight-Lipped About Hanoi Mission

By JOHN KIRKWOOD
Special To The Times

HONG KONG — Special Canadian envoy Chester Ronning left here for home today tight-lipped about his mission to North Viet Nam.

A government spokesman immediately called for its rejection.

Former speaker Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) submitted a motion calling for the committee on the ground that the cabinet's action in framing the terms of reference constituted an invasion of the Commons' right to determine how its privileges shall be dealt with.

"No outside body can usurp this right," Mr. Lambert said.

"It was a supreme contempt of the right of the House for the executive (the cabinet) to arrogate to itself the reference and action to another body."

By setting up a judicial inquiry under Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the supreme court into the Munsinger affair, the cabinet abused and infringed Parliament's right to deal itself with its own privileges.

Health Minister MacEachen, leadoff spokesman for the government, urged Speaker Lucien Lamoureux to reject Mr. Lambert's motion.

URGES REJECTION

The minister said the only type of motion acceptable at that point was one declaring charges against Justice Minister Cardin. Anything else was a "grotesque device" to avoid the original issue raised by the opposition.

The Munsinger crisis rocked the Commons Monday for the third straight day.

Monday's debate opened quietly but gradually became hot and heavy. Some high-lights:

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accused the Liberals of spreading "smear, scandal and snut" about his former cabinet colleagues in a last-ditch attempt to stage a comeback from disrepute.

Justice Minister Cardin staked his Commons seat on the outcome of the inquiry and challenged Mr. Diefenbaker to do likewise. The Conservative leader denied Mr. Cardin's allegations about a security risk and ignored the challenge.

—Dave Fulton, former Conservative justice minister, said Privy Council President Favreau called him to his office about 10 days ago and warned that the Munsinger case would be dislodged unless the Conservatives stopped hitting the government's handling of the George Victor Spencer security case.

—Mr. Favreau confirmed that he told Mr. Fulton the Spencer case was a trifle compared with the Munsinger affair and other secret files the Conservative had seen. He denied having threatened or blackmailed Mr. Fulton.

Arthur Mayse

Today I am back home, limping on both feet, from the first major exhibition of outdoors gear I've attended since the Victoria sportsman's show dropped into oblivion several years past.

It's a great pity that our local effort had to be abandoned, and perhaps some year, exhibitors' interest and local demand will be hot enough to warrant a renewal. Meanwhile, thanks to fast and frequent fairs, Vancouver ver is only a hopskip distant, and in four connected PNE buildings this week, you can prowl among boats, trailers and related equipment until your feet like mine, are wearied out.

Queen of the show is a cruiser that boasts a gold-braid skipper to welcome guests aboard, and a $26,000 price tag. At the other end of the scale is a ducky little $39.50 beach-boat scarce large enough to hold a couple of children. Between these extremes, the range of sail-carrying and powered craft is enormous.

The cruiser I mentioned is mahogany planked, which makes her one of the very few wooden boats on display. Among the smaller boats, modern usage favors aluminum for car-top transport, and plastic for trailer launching in lengths up to and even beyond 20 feet.

It was among the fiberglass utility types that I spotted my someday boat.

I told her to wait patiently a while, patted her sweetly-moulded tumblehome, then roved on to gape at a two-seater pneumatic kayak from West Germany. Nearby was an inflatable raft in which a party of McGill medical school adventurers ran the Fraser from Prince George to Hope, including grim Hell's Gate chute.

The inflatables are becoming steadily more popular where extreme light weight and resilience is needed. Also, the canoe is making a brisk comeback. One of a large display was a plastic job which the makers had customized into a convincing replica of birch-bark for a J. Arthur Rank movie set in the Canadian wilds.

Light and versatile, a good canoe is also amazingly seaworthy, and will accommodate a low-horsepower outboard motor, either clamped to a side bracket or in modules built specially for such use, hung on a square stern

From boats, I drifted into trailer country. There too, significant changes were plain to be seen.

In addition to conventional trailers and truck or car-mounted campers, two other rigs are prominently displayed.

One of these is the camping van, a rolling home equipped for comfortable living. You'll undoubtedly see plenty of these on the roads and in the camp grounds this year, along with several brands and types of tent trailer.

Basically, this useful compromise between ground-squatting tent and travel trailer consists of a rectangular aluminum box with two-piece lid. Each half of the lid folds out to form a sleeping ledge. Hoist the tent tucked into the trailer box, secure the tubular metal framework, and you have a snug camp on wheels.

Some of these tent trailers or trailer-tents are veritable palaces; I spotted one with three separate rooms. Among their virtues, and those of a second type in which the box is winched up to form a hard roof over fabric sides, is that when collapsed, they tow without blocking off driver visibility astern.

An emergency trailer equipment, a hansom which blandly conceals a chemical toilet could under certain conditions of trailer travel, more than justify its inclusion. So to the tenter, might a propane combination which feeds a lamp, a tent heater and a stove from the same cylinder.

VANDALISM at Centennial Caravan included tearing this intercom unit from the wall by front entrance. It is held by caretaker-driver John Schmidt. The historical display is at Esquimalt Sports Centre today. Most of the damage was done in Victoria.

Graduate Studies Offered by Uvic In Eight Fields

The University of Victoria Monday released details of its newly-formed school of graduate studies, which will open in September.

Formation of the graduate school, which has been under study since 1962, was first announced last month.

It will offer programs leading to post-graduate degrees in eight fields of study, including psychology which was recently added.

"The addition of such newcomers will enrich our present strong undergraduate program as well," he added.

SENSE OF URGENCY

Stating that there is "a sense of urgency" about the development of graduate schools, Dr. Taylor expressed high hopes for the future of Uvic's school.

Canadian universities need 1,200 Ph.D.s a year" for teaching, he said. "And Canadian universities are producing only 400."

"That is quite apart from the Ph.D.s required by Canadian industry and government."

The university is ready to enter the graduate studies field, said Dr. Taylor, as it has been offering a four-year program of undergraduate work for six years now.

The library and scientific equipment at the university will be shared by graduate and undergraduate students, he said.

THEY'LL LEAVE

And unless professors at the university have the opportunity to work with advanced students they will leave.

Admission to the graduate school is set at a minimum 70 per cent average in the last two years of a student's work.

Dr. M. H. Scargill, dean of the graduate school said this is "in line" with admission requirements of graduate schools at other universities, if not higher.

Shareholders met this morning and voted unanimously to "go public" because of the interest shown by investors in the firm.

President Douglas J. Levery, one of two principals in the company and co-developers of the new patented chain, said no new share capital is sought.

The company is authorized to issue 1,000,000 shares of no par value, $80,000 of which have been sold.

Because of the improvements in traditional chain saw design that are incorporated in the new Lemery chain, considerable interest has been shown by companies already in the business.

A deal has been made to assure Atlas of 12,000 worldwide outlets as soon as production permits and other arrangements are being made that will see Atlas as a Victoria-based manufacturer, franchiser and distributor for the chain in Europe, Russia, Africa, East Asia and other areas.

Man Fined $225 For False Claims

Jean Joseph Thiebaut, address unavailable, was fined $225 in central court today for making false unemployment insurance claims.

He pleaded guilty to two counts in December, 1964, and another in January, 1965.

VANDALS HAVE FIELD DAY ON CENTENNIAL CARAVAN

Officials Boil as the Spoilers Toil

By PETE LOUDON

The historical exhibits they need in the B.C. Centennial Caravan, they haven't got.

The leg irons the old chain gang wore — or a pillory would be handy.

The stocks may not have been used in early British Columbia, but they could be used with good effect today to handle the young vandals who are methodically wrecking the touring display.

Since the show opened Saturday to the public, the spoilers have had a field day. They tore an intercom unit from the wall.

Young vandals pried the cover from a make-believe gold nugget. They scratched their names on the walls, smeared windows and wrote obscenities in the visitors' book.

They dumped a five-gallon fire extinguisher, filling a passageway, with white foam. And some little devils jumped into the model of the Fraser River. Just for a moment the two men in charge of the display may have wished the rapids were the real thing.

How could all this happen in the space of two or three days? It's partly due to the fact that 7,000 people converged on the caravan Monday and as many more on Saturday and Sunday.

HARD TO PATROL

With crowds like that, close supervision of the narrow darkened passages is all but impossible.

Caretakers-drivers Dave Bennett and John Schmidt who move and set up the trailer displays and who will take them through the province, say also that local centennial committees are supposed to provide help. But so far it hasn't been arranged on a day-long basis.

They are waiting now for replacement parts for the damaged displays from Vancouver. But even without these items, the free show is

Burgeoning Chain Firm 'Goes Public'

Victoria's newest manufacturing industry today became a public company after a year in formation in a former Esquimalt bakery.

Atlas Chain Co. Ltd., 754 Fairview, was formed as a limited company last March and plans to start producing a new type of portable power saw cutting chain in May.

Shareholders met this morning and voted unanimously to "go public" because of the interest shown by investors in the firm.

President Douglas J. Levery, one of two principals in the company and co-developers of the new patented chain, said no new share capital is sought.

'Full Strength' Display Of Summer Flower Baskets

Victoria's famous hanging flower baskets will not be reproduced by 50 per cent this summer after all.

Reporting to the parks committee this morning parks administrator Herbert Warren clarified an earlier statement saying that only 250 baskets would grace city streets this year instead of the normal 500.

The reduction in baskets, approved in committee last year, applies only to the spring display," he said. "The summer baskets will be at full strength always."

The first 250 spring baskets will be used only on Douglas Street from the Crystal Garden to Herald and in Centennial Square.

The youths were siphoning gas from a large tank at McRae Bros. Trucking, 1445 Ocean View, when they were interrupted by one of the owners. They were later arrested by police at their home.

The only puzzle here is why Maquinna got the factory-woven cloth skirt in the wilds of Nootka in 1778. Everything else looks real.

SHAKE HANDS

11 Dogs Shot In N. Saanich

Sheep Marauders Killed on Reserve

By BILL CHATTERTON

Eleven dogs, including two believed responsible for the slaughter of 11 sheep, have been shot in North Saanich over the last four days.

Sidney RCMP shot nine dogs on the Cole Bay Indian Reserve over the weekend and Thomas M. Thomson shot two dogs as they mauled sheep on his property at 9635 West Saanich Road.

A policeman said the dogs were shot on the reserve after several dogs ate a pup which had been killed on West Saanich Road by a car.

All nine sheep were badly torn and Mr. Thomson shot the two marauding dogs immediately.

NONE DIED

"We got the vet and the sheep are now sewn up and loaded with antibiotics," he said. So far none have died.

Mr. Thomson said the dogs worked silently and efficiently until they found themselves trapped in the barn. He said that in future "I'm going to be a bit faster with the gun than I have been."

This is not the first time he has shot dogs harassing his sheep. Four of his sheep were killed about 14 months ago and he killed three dogs at that time.

DON'T GET MESSAGE'

Referring to nearby residents who allow their dogs to roam free at night he said, "Some people don't seem to get the message. They say their dogs are gentle and wouldn't chase the sheep but when two or three of them band up together they are dangerous."

His major interest however was his service to the cancer society which extended over a period of more than 15 years. He has served as secretary of numerous Conquer Cancer campaigns including the one now in preparation for April.

Dugald Gillespie, who is chairman for 10 years, had a long association with Mr. Seace, said Mr. Seace did a "marvelous job" at all times.

His passing is a deep and terrible loss to the community, said Mr. Gillespie.

Mr. Seace is survived by the widow Muriel at home, 1336 Richardson. There are no children.

Private funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall Brothers.

Bloody Riots Worse

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Bloody rioting between Hindus and Sikhs spread today through northwestern India. Police used tear gas and rifles to try to restore order but authorities said the situation had taken a turn for the worse.

Authorities clamped a dusk-to-dawn curfew on New Delhi itself following a rioting in which three persons were killed and 100 injured Monday. The situation was tense in the capital but was worse in the Punjab where rioting was in its fifth day.

The rioting began when Hindu nationalists attacked bearded Sikhs in protest against a government decision to create a Punjabi-speaking state for the Sikhs in northeastern India.

THREE CITIES HIT

At least three cities in the Punjab were hit by disturbances today — Ludhiana, 160 miles northwest of New Delhi, and at Jullundur and Bhawani.

Sikhs and members of the opposing Jan Sangh Party staged a fierce 15-minute battle today in Ludhiana with sticks and swords. Casualties were not reported. Troops were called out to help quell the riots.

At Bhawani, police opened fire on the mob and killed one person and wounded 10 others, reports reaching New Delhi said.

In Jullundur, the body of a victim killed in Monday's clashes, was taken in procession by Jan Sangh workers under a heavy police escort. The workers climbed on roofs and stoned police patrols below, injuring two policemen.

Watutsis Massing For Attack

NAIROBI (AP) — An estimated 2,500 Watutsi tribesmen led by several Peking-trained guerrilla warfare experts are massed in Burundi on the border with Rwanda and apparently preparing to invade Rwanda, their homeland, intelligence sources report.

Wives and children of the American embassy staff in Kigali, the capital of Rwanda, have been evacuated to Kenya and the Canadian air force is preparing to fly out nearly 100 Canadians teaching at Rwanda's National University in Butare.

The warlike Watutsis — some of whom are seven feet tall — are said to be armed with modern automatic weapons, mostly from China.

The Watutsis fled from Rwanda in 1963 when that little country's more numerous Bahutus turned on them and killed thousands. Burundi is governed by a Watutsi regime which has made only token efforts to disarm and disperse their fellow tribesmen.

U.S. Radio Boycotts Broadcast

NEW YORK (UPI) — The controversial Cassius Clay-George Chuvalo fight will not be broadcast on radio in the United States because of an apparent sponsor boycott, Michael Malitz of Main Bout Inc., said today.

Malitz said the fight set for March 29th in Toronto will not be on radio because no sponsors were willing to pick up the tab to broadcast it.

Villages Sacked, Pakistan Claims

DACCA, East Pakistan (Reuters) — A Pakistani government member said today it found after Indian troops withdrew from parts of West Pakistan that 275 villages had been destroyed, wells filled in and dozens of persons bound and slain. Syed Murid Hassan Shah, member of the ruling Muslim League from Sialkot which was a major battle ground in the three-week war between India and Pakistan last September, said not a single house in the area was left intact.

NO SPY CONNECTIONS: BAVARIAN OFFICIAL

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — Bavarian security authorities said today they have found nothing to connect Gerda Munsinger, who figures in the Canadian sex-and-security case, with espionage.

Dr. Hans Ziegler of the state's interior ministry said in answer to reporters' questions that responsible authorities have no records or information linking Mrs. Munsinger to spy activities.

GERDA:

'Life Ruined By Russians'

TORONTO (UPI) — Gerda Munsinger today denied she had been a spy and said "the Russians ruined my life."

Mrs. Munsinger, the central figure in the Ottawa sex scandal, made these comments in an interview with CBC national affairs reporter Norman Depoe.

Depoe asked Mrs. Munsinger if she had been an agent employed by "the Soviets."

"That is a lie, let me say why . . . those people have harmed me so much in my young life that I would never even move a finger for anyone of them," Mrs. Munsinger said.

Depoe asked Mrs. Munsinger why the Russians had ruined her life.

GEN. N. VAN CHUAN, named acting corps commander after Thi's removal by the military junta last Thursday, predicted the strike "will die of its own accord." He added:

"I have not taken any severe measures because there has been no violence and no infiltration by the Communists."

At his home in Saigon, Thi expressed surprise at the display of support in his old headquarters. He told a reporter he was awaiting orders from the government and declined to say what his present status is.

Thi, 43, held sway over South Viet Nam's five northernmost provinces in almost warlord fashion. He was considered a potential rival to Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

Nowlan Makes Appeal To Clear Father's Name

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Patrick Nowlan, Conservative MP for Digby-Annapolis-Kings, said today in the Commons he will have to consider giving up his seat unless his father's name is cleared immediately of connections with the Munsinger affair.

Nowlan said the central figure in the Ottawa sex scandal, made these comments in an interview with CBC national affairs reporter Norman Depoe.

Depoe asked Mrs. Munsinger if she had been an agent employed by "the Soviets."

"I wanted to forget, I knew I couldn't forget. I wanted to get away from all this . . . you see there was so much harm done to me after the war by the Russians and I couldn't forget here."

Nowlan addressed a personal and moving appeal to Prime Minister Pearson and Justice Minister Cardin to stand up in the Commons and at least clear the dead even though they refuse to charge the living."

Mr. Nowlan said the late Sydney Smith, Conservative external affairs minister; the late Paul Comtois, Conservative mines minister and Lieutenant-governor of Quebec, and his father are three former cabinet ministers now dead who have been brought under suspicion by Mr. Cardin's charges in the Munsinger case.

Mr. Nowlan said George Nowlan was his friend and had his admiration and respect. Nothing had changed that respects in any way.

But Mr. Pearson did not say that George Nowlan wasn't involved in the Munsinger case. Mr. Cardin said nothing.

Mr. Nowlan denied reports that "two or more" ministers in the Diefenbaker cabinet were involved with Gerda Munsinger who, Mr. Cardin said, was a security risk.

He said the story "is merely a rumor. There is no basis in it at all."

Ferency admitted, "Mrs. Munsinger does not know herself as yet what she is going to do."

"In the meantime," he said, "we are keeping her hidden away for a while longer to prevent the opposition (newsmen) from getting at her."

ROUND-A-ABOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

We've had some mail and heard many comments about the Greater Victoria Art Gallery showing of rocks and water and (appropriately perhaps) fruit cakes in plastic bags. There seems to be a growing feeling that the gallery is having us on.

Much suspicion could be removed if, along with each showing of far-out "art" the artist was required to display one painting or drawing of a scene or portrait or still life, just to prove he had won his spurs doing something the rest of us couldn't do.

When an artist displays something which could be duplicated by a child or an ape there will always be suspicion of fraud both on the part of the artist and the gallery which collects money for its exhibits.

Greater Victoria School Board Employees' Association's newsletter, edited by Denis H. Besley, says there would be less beer bottles and pop bottles broken on the streets if there was a 10-cent charge and refund for these bottles instead of two cents.

The same bulletin says the school board moves quickly to arrange vaccinations and inoculations for pupils to avoid the spread of illness in the schools. All board employees should be given the same shots to make the program effective, says the union, noting that this "approach has not been followed by the board."

Sometimes it's the small things that build Victoria's fame abroad. A San Franciscan sent this clipping from an unidentified U.S. magazine which collects news oddities:

CITY DUPLEX

Rheumy duplex, Stadacona Park area, 5 rooms up and 5 down. Adv. in Victoria (B.C.) Daily Times.

The magazine adds: "Cataract Hall, we call it."

Gwen Scott, Marjette Book Shop, advises that Agnes Newton Keith, author of Land Below the Wind and Three Came Home, walked into MacFadden publishers and discovered the managing director to be George Clay, who wrote the best-seller novel Gina. Mr. Clay lived in Duncan and recently in Victoria, where he is well known.

BRIEFS FROM BRITAIN—The Ministry of Works has rejected an offer by two technicians who would remove a hundred-year-old crack from Big Ben. They said the repair would provide the famed clock with a clear "boing" instead of the "bol-o-ling" now famous to radio listeners around the world. Reason for the refusal—no one ever has complained. The English like "bol-o-ling" best. Dorset police are exhibiting an anti-climb paint which stays slippery when applied to drain pipes. British TV's spy story, Danger Man, has been nominated in Hollywood as the best-produced TV program of 1965. The Salvation Army has permission to use the Beatles' film Help! as basis for a fund campaign advertisement.

SNIPPETS—Canadian Girls' Rodeo Association is looking for competitors here. The association's head office address is Box 23, Calgary.

Fox Cinema's former assistant manager, Gary Nixon, is now assistant librarian at Dawson Creek.

Harry Hollins, who plays piano duets with his wife at Silver Threads, reads his music without glasses, which is pretty good for 95. Herbie II, the caged seal at Undersea Gardens, punched a hole in his wire fence and attacked a lady halibut last week. Divers intervened but the halibut looked a bit flattened by it all. Pat Bay Highway residents are apparently competing in displaying reflector tape road marks which tell friends where to prepare to turn off.

Shotgun Shuba Says He Knew Gerda in '56

MONTREAL (CP)—Columnist Bruce Taylor writes in The Star of an interview with George Shuba, a former baseball player who said Gerda Munsinger followed him to Ottawa, Florida and Tennessee.

Saanich Police Asked To Nab Mud-Throwers

Saanich school trustees Monday decided to ask Saanich police department for help in curbing petty vandalism at Royal Oak elementary and junior secondary schools.

Buildings superintendent Bryan Shaw told the board that mud has been splattered on exterior doors and walls at both schools on recent weekends.

Plants have been torn up and thrown against the buildings, he said. Mr. Shaw said it is more like the work of small children and is chiefly a nuisance. The vandalism has occurred on Saturday afternoons or evenings, he said.

Trustees agreed to request Saanich police to make extra checks of the schools, particularly at weekends.

Unsettled weather is expected over much of the province for the next few days as fairly moist air continues to flow in from the Pacific. However, temperatures are forecast to begin a slow downward trend as somewhat colder air moving from Alaska over the Pacific reaches the coast on Wednesday.

'Usefulness As Minister Has Ended'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The leader of the New Democratic Party said Monday night that no matter what happens from now on regarding the case of Gerda Munsinger, the usefulness of Lucien Cardin as a justice minister has ended.

Here for a service club speech, T. C. Douglas told a press conference Mr. Cardin was only trying to prove his strength when he mentioned Mrs. Munsinger in the House of Commons during debate on his department's estimates.

Mr. Cardin since has alleged that one or more Conservative ministers in the last cabinet of John Diefenbaker were involved with her during their tenure in office and that a possible security leak existed because of this.

Mr. Douglas said of Mr. Cardin's accusations in the House: "So often weak men want to be strong in the wrong place. His ego was so injured that he acted like a spoiled child and had to lash out at somebody and in a temper mentioned the Munsinger case."

WOULD WALK OUT

Mr. Douglas said he is prepared to lead his party out of the House should the Liberals and Conservatives not return to the nation's business immediately. But he did not foresee the government falling over the issue.

He said the discussion should have ended with Prime Minister Pearson's announcement of a judicial inquiry into the affair, but that with Social Credit and Creditists support the minority Liberal government would continue.

"It would be a very queer thing to hold an election over," he said. "I suppose you'd call it the Goldilocks election—who's been sleeping in my bed."

He also said he had been reliably informed that a person he would not name had destroyed the original justice department files on Mrs. Munsinger, 36, once believed dead but since found living in Munich, Germany. He said, though, the RCMP has a duplicate of the file.

He said that when a person is in public office his private life is public business, particularly if he is a cabinet minister.

"If I were a minister of the Crown and allowed myself to be compromised in some way, say, a sex scandal, gambling or fraud, I would lay myself open to blackmail."

"It's not only a matter of security but the operation of the department. If someone were wanting special privileges then they can blackmail me."

"If I had been head of the government, I would have let him go just because I would consider him vulnerable to have around."

He mentioned no names.

Down on Farm . . .

HONG KONG (AP)—China has placed 160,000 writers, performers, artists and musicians in manual jobs on farms, factories, mines and military units in the past 18 months, Peking's official Peoples Daily reports.

He said he would tell the FBI about his relationship with Miss Munsinger because he did not want to lose his job with the U.S. post office.

FULTON REPLY

Munsinger File Sent to RCMP'

TIMES OTTAWA BUREAU

OTTAWA—RCMP file on the Munsinger case was returned to him when he was speaking Monday in the House. Mr. Pickersgill asked if the file to which Mr. Fulton had made repeated reference was a "security file" in the usual acceptance of that term?

Mr. Fulton replied, "It was a confidential file, so marked and it dealt with matters which are secret and confidential as between myself and the RCMP."

The NDP said his source was completely dependable. However, Justice Minister Lucien Cardin has not charged that there has been a "breach of security." He did tell a press conference that there was a "security risk."

ONE COPY

It is Mr. Fulton's understanding there was only one copy of the file. It was shown to him by the RCMP commissioner. After examining it, he returned it to the RCMP.

During his speech in the House Monday, Mr. Fulton said that the file made no suggestion that "any offence had been committed by any member of the government."

Mr. Fulton said that he received a report from the RCMP. The same day he referred it to the then prime minister John Diefenbaker.
